Miss Mary R. Bacon

The class of 1931 dedicates this Tamarack to Mary R. Bacon.

Miss Bacon is one member of the faculty with whom every student in the senior A class has been acquainted and from whom each student has received help. She entered North Central in October 1926, the year before the present graduating class.

The senior A's wish to express their deep appreciation for the service she has rendered during their high school career.

Here's luck to one of the biggest people I know, see to the Snicker
 (Mickey)

Wishing you
 luck in algebra
 Ed. Davis
 Wishing a fellow sufferer of algebra
 lots of luck!
 In love Ed

Class Will

This—the last will and testament of the Class of June, 1931; A. D.—is very respectfully submitted to the students of North Central for their ——— approval.

We wish first to express our very deep regret on leaving this exalted institution of learning. We are carrying away in our hearts many a fond and pleasant memory of the four short years (for most of us anyway) we spent in "Old N. C."

And now—we will proceed to leave some more material things than memories to those students who are not yet sufficiently saturated with intelligence to don the cap and gown.

Our very worthy class president, Bob Johnson, bequeathes his popularity and executive ability to whomever aspires to his position in the succeeding semester.

In order to carry out the school colors, James McBroom is leaving his flaming foretop to Toussant Tucker. (Dear old Red and Black!) P. S. "Red" Martin refused to leave his. Guess why.

Of all the tough breaks! Knowing how Harold Hinkle is going to miss sweet Hazel Miles, we wish to extend our very deepest sympathy while Hazel, with tears in her eyes is leaving Harold—well, anyway, yesterday we heard him singing, "Tears for souvenirs is all you left me."

Melvin Gullidge, commonly known as the "Iron Man," wills his athletic prowess to any or all of the aspiring athletes around N. C. who feel capable of handling the job.

Wick Snyder, being of a philanthropic trend of mind at the moment, wilfully leaves his Communistic, Socialistic or "What Have You" views for Miss Cronk's use.

Dave Russell, Irwin Stewart and Emmett Arndt have decided to leave their long windedness to Jack Keenan; however, they have requested that he use it out on the "cinder track" rather than in the halls.

That man (Howard MacInerney) who makes Tarzan look like an amateur, has very kindly consented to leave his magnificent physical proportions to little Goliath.

Doris Myers wishes to leave her pale complexion to Mr. Hawes. (Well well!)

Frank Legault has requested that we leave his big, husky bowlegs to Pat Green.

Best wishes are left to Marion Malmoe by Marjorie Masterman, Elmer Nelson and Clyde Bergdahl.

The two Bobs—Grieve and Adams— after going into a huddle have decided to ———

Little Miss Spring is leaving her womanly pulchritude and charm to all the girls of North Central.

We are still searching for someone worthy of the honor of receiving Maxine Armstrong's and Doris Lee's super, super-intelligence. (Leave your applications with either of the two girls.)

North Central's gift to the women (you guessed it—Duke Thyrian) has decided to go with us, but he gives his very best regards to all the women. (Earl Redlin and Maurice Castle said that "them's" their sentiments also. (We hope all the girls appreciate the thoughtfulness of the boys.)

Lloyd Bennett (and no doubt many others.) is leaving his book deposit for the many books that he has lost during his career at North Central.

Those two lovers, (Freeman McDonald and Audrey DeLeon) who made Anthony and Cleopatra look like pikers, are leaving their ability to put on passionate scenes to the next senior dramatics class; also Dorothy Wheeler wishes to contribute a little of her acting ability to the next senior dramatics class.

Evelyn Mowbray is, with all due respect to the "Dancer," bequeathing some of her dancing talent to George Triefel.

Oh yes—that great big boy with the deep bass voice (Umh Huh—Clarence Talbot's the boy) very kindly presents his mustachio to Gordon Reckord—He said Gordon could even have the wax on it.

Jack Ashton and his bunch of newslers are leaving the News Office all littered with printer's ink and fingermarks to the coming generation.

Lucille Boyer is leaving her sweet voice for the use of her sister Doris (Nothing like keeping things in the family.)

Handsome Bill Shaw is leaving his name on several athletic trophies and he is also leaving an old pair of tennis shoes for "Granny" Hauser.

We, the Senior graduating class, in parting, wish to leave Ray Hendricks to the Senior B class (maybe classes.)

We haven't decided what we're going to do with Bill Pollard alias the Phantom of the Ivories, but we'll probably take him with us.

And now to all those whose names have not appeared in the will—we leave our very, very best wishes.

Class History

At the mystic hour when all ghosts walk,
When the midnight chimes died away,
The old night watchman stopped to rest
And watch the spirits play.

You know in the hall by room 110
There are pictures all over the walls;
They have watched for years the busy throng
That surges each day through the halls.

The glass of one swung open wide
Like an ancient castle door,
And a man stepped out of the antique frame
And walked across the floor.

He walked to another picture there
And gallantly opened the frame,
The watchman's heart went flippity flop
For out stepped a nifty dame.

The sentinel sat still and watched this pair
As they went for a midnight walk,
Straining his ears to catch each word
For the two began to talk!

The man spake first, "O lady dear,
You know vacation time is near,
And listen, sweet, it's about the date
For another group to graduate.
You know, we've seen many classes leave,
It's the largest class that e'er went out
But this is the finest I believe,
And a hunch for the school to brag about
They started here in one September
Back in '27—can you remember?"
Then spoke the lady, "I've never seen
A bunch of fresh so dumb and green!
But, say, old top, they were fast to learn
When as sophomores they took their turn.
The Boys' Federation soon saw their class
And took two presidents out of the mass;
And the goddess of Wisdom took her toll
For they turned out the largest honor roll.
I think this bunch is sure O. K.
And I hate to see them go away."

"You're right there, baby," quoth the fellow,
"Not a student in that class was yellow
With lettermen in every sport
They trimmed the Tiger's whiskers short.
Say, talent was surely there always,
Do you remember the one act plays?
And the class play 'Dulcy,' that sure was keen,
The finest acting I've ever seen
They excelled in every thing, you know,
And their going will be an awful blow
To our old school. But I forget
Who are the officers, my pet?"

So the lady said, "The president's job
Went to that Johnson boy—you know—Bob
As handsome a boy as I ever hope to see
And Mel Guldge, too, made a big hit with me.
For he was vice president. And do you know
They chose Steve Fuller to handle the dough.
The position of secretary, I believe
Went to my old friend, little Bob Grieve.
And the Officers when they were Senior B's
Were Johnson, Fybric, Guldge and Grieve."

Then said the man, "You know, I fear
We could talk all night or talk all year;
But they've done so much good for old N. C.
That to praise all their virtues is far past me."
They surely deserve a pat on the back
For their bigger and better Tamarack."

The watchman peeked from his place on the stairs

At the couple as they drew near;
And he saw the man light a cigarette—
"Hey! You can't do that in here!"

The couple turned and saw him there,
They both gave a monstrous leap.
They sailed through the air into their frames,
And promptly went to sleep.

Class Prophecy

The braves and maidens of the tribe Big-shuts were gathered around a huge council fire in a wooded valley by a winding stream. At the head of this circle sat Chief Lickem and the medicine man, Tellemall.

The chief arose and addressed the assembly: "A strange omen has come to us. Bars of light have flitted across the evening sky for the last three moons. We are gathered here tonight to hear the meaning of these shafts of light from the medicine man."

He turned to the old brave at his side, and at the chief's bidding, Tellemall began to speak.

"The Great Spirit has sent these bars of sunlight in to the night that I might see in them what the future holds for all of you.

"All of you shall die brave deaths, and your fiery spirits shall be reincarnated in the children of white men.

"I see in the future a strange institution called a high school, from which, in June '31 you shall receive curious weapons called diplomas, with which you shall battle the world.

"In this future day Chief Lickem will be called Bob Johnson. With his sheepskin weapon he shall procure for himself a position behind a huge desk, and white man shall call him a banker.

"Braves Grimabut and Bearit will be known as Mel Gulbidge and Bob Grieve. You will fare forth with letters proclaiming prowess on field of contest only to find a position under their chief as bank teller and twenty-second vice president.

"Kinkyhead, your name shall be Marilla Bardsley; you shall fly a steel bird in the air and will do stunts for people in Hollywood.

"You, O Brave Shapbrush, will live again as Steve Fuller and will paint what white men call telephone poles.

"You, Hotterhot, will become Grace Phyrle, and will be employed by the Grassville fire department as a fire extinguisher.

"The maiden Deereyes will be Dorothy Wheeler, the simple-minded beauty of the senior class, will travel through the country as a second Edna Wallace Hopper.

"And you, O Shoutitall, will be Jack Hayes, who will try to make an impression on freshies' minds as a Latin teacher. You will make many speeches which will be enjoyed by Jack Hayes.

"You will be known as Lucille Page, Maiden Tilghloup, and ten years after you graduate from high school you will be seen weekly reciting to your Old Maids' club the tale of the operation you underwent back in '31.

"James Rowan will be your name, O Sober-sides. At the age of ten you will make a witty remark and will spend the rest of your life trying to make another.

"You will be addressed as Eleanor Kennedy, Poppaizit. You will live in Greenwich Village and will write blankity blank verse.

"Ruth Wells, the Human Giant, will be the name seen on the billboards of a freak show. Within the theater upon the platform shall rest the form of Shakalimb.

"Freeman McDonald will be the name you hear, O Knowalot, skilled in the arts of trickery and having a slick tongue. You will make $7000 a year selling frigidaire to the Eskimos.

"A peculiar home, known as the Orphan Asylum, will be managed by Socabrat, who will become Winifred Benedict.

"Marjorie Masterman, whom we know as Talkalegoff, will at some future time be the proud winner of a danceathon. Her partner will be Bob Adams, here called Heezaheman.

"Earl McCarthy will the name of Sippabol-azoup. He shall so hate to leave his high school on graduation that he will return the following year as janitor and organize an orchestra of radiator noises.

"The maiden we call Flipperflapper will be known as Evelyn Mowbray and will earn a comfortable income growing hair for a wig making factory.

"Such will be your fate five hundred years hence.

As the medicine man stopped speaking, darkness came over the land, for the shafts of light had disappeared.

JANUARY:

22. Basketball season is on; L. C., 31—N. C., 9.

27. Better luck this time. We beat Hillyard 26-10.

28. Last game of series goes to L. C. 13-10.

FEBRUARY:

2. Doris Lee and Fred Lawson head Girls' League and Boys' Federation this semester.

6. Freshie boys entertained by Federation.

7. Big massacre at Chewelah; N. C. victorious in basketball 38-22.

10. "Eat, drink and be merry" is slogan for P. T. C. Valentine dinner in the cafe.

11. Sophomore B boys win interclass basketball tournament from junior A's.

12. Advertising staff gives a con to launch News campaign. N. C. frosh show promise by beating L. C. in overtime game 20-18.

13. Associated Students Council meets in cafe and elects Winifred Benedict president.

16. Wanita Sage and Phyllis Carrico help girls play tennis at first practice in gym.

16. Community Chest starts—N. C. quota $965.

17. First senior A meeting. Nominate officers and class speaker.

18. Annual S. A. R. contest won by Pamela Persons.

19. Our frosh again victorious. Final score 12-5.

20. Freshies frolic and cousins caper at party in cafeteria. Presidents meet and choose Fred Lawson to head the council. U. of Idaho trounces Indians by score of 27-14.

22. Final handicap meet—boys stage comeback and win 85-79.

23. N. C. frosh lost to Hillyard 14-12.

26. It's out! Elmer Nelson made editor in chief of Tamarack. Over the top again! We raise $975. for the Chest.

28. U. of Idaho frosh must be good; second game ends 38-18.

MARCH:

3. And so they (boys) took up golf—Elwood Tucker, manager.

4. Senior A meeting—Bob Johnson elected president.

5. Playfield in luck again; alumni responsible.

6. Girls' League con for awarding of pins.

10. Faculty entertained at tea.

10. And then they (girls) took up golf—Bernadine Childs manager.

12. Wicks got the boys out to start the baseball work.

18. Again the senior B's meet.

19. Three cheers for Ruth McFaddin. Seniors will have assigned seats hereafter in convocation.

20. We beat 'em at last, folks. Swim finals, N. C. 36, L. C. 23.

21. Another victory within two days—N. C. swimming team beats W. S. C. frosh 43-16.

23. Aviation club gets $175 glider.

24. Mr. Kennedy awards swimming and basketball letters in con. Delts advertise big annual show.

27. Department meetings.

27-28. Delta Hi Jinks—and wot a wow!

28. We lose another good teacher—Miss Frenks left for Stanford to study.

APRIL:

2. All day suckers and a lot of fun. Why? Girls' League party.

3. Girls present style show in con. They're cruel and indiscreet—how could our teachers give such grades? And now a week of vacation in which to recuperate.

6. O, Boy! 218 students make scholastic honor roll.

8-9-10. 3000 teachers attend I. E. E. A.

14. Parents and teachers get together to discuss the merits of students. Oh, Yeah?

16. A boom, a bang, a squeek and a squawk—just a keen con by the band is all. Gonzaga beats N. C. in baseball in first game—9-8. Senior A's dedicate the Tamarack to Miss Bacon.

17. Band gives 15th concert successfully. Track team beats Gonzaga, and how!

20. History awards given to Jack Ashton and Maxine Armstrong.

23. N. C. delegates leave for Pullman convention. Band also starts for Wenatchee. The school looks empty with so many gone. We beat Hillyard in baseball—16-10.

25. N. C. ties Coeur d' Alene in track—61-61.

27. Girls lose the first half of the swim—

READING

"I wish I had more time to read" how many times have you said those words or have heard someone else say them? And yet most of us are spendthrift readers. Owing to faulty habits in reading, we waste from ten to thirty minutes of each hour of reading. A study of a random group of twenty students, when reading silently to themselves at their ordinary rates, showed that their reading speeds varied all the way from 2.5 to 9.8 words per second

Theodore Roosevelt managed to be astonishingly well read even during his busiest period in the White House because he knew how to read. A slow reader can teach himself to read more rapidly without loss of effectiveness in understanding of the content read or in the flavor of the author's style. Experimental evidence does not bear out the traditional belief under which most of us were brought up that slow readers make up for their slowness by more thorough comprehension.

In spite of every distraction we continue to read books in increasing numbers. Contrary to fears expressed, reading has not been lessened by the new tools and toys which consume so much other time.

If you are interested in the world you live in, read more. There is plenty of time. Electric light and shorter working periods have given us priceless leisure. Despite all competing diversions there is still time for reading. If you want to enrich your life pick out a few books for thoughtful reading. However busy you are, this is practicable.

While many books are useless, in other books are the records of the very best that men and women have hoped, felt and thought. When we read these, we enjoy the companionship of the finest of mankind.

SHADOWS ON THE WALL.

Another name for these shadows is memories, but perhaps shadows give us a plainer picture of things that we like to remember.

When we sit and dream, these shadows pass across the wall before us making each incident as picturesque and as real as the day that it happened. Sometimes with the help of the imagination the pictures have more attraction than the original event. Or perhaps it has more significance now than it had in the beginning.

As we let these shadows pass in review they remind us of the day that the green apples were too tempting in the vacant lot, or the day that we carried water to the elephants for a free ticket to the circus. Maybe the scenes recall a visit to a strange city or to an interesting place or an automobile trip. The next picture might bring back a meeting with a prominent person whom one had so much desired to speak to.

Then there are those dark shadows that creep out in spite of our attempts to keep them hidden. There was the day that cousin Tom nearly drowned, a mean little thing that was done to torment someone, or the loss of a dear friend. This kind of shadow is hard to blot out, but perhaps they help us to cultivate that virtue called forbearance for other people's troubles.

It is said that older people live on memories, so if we can keep these shadows our life will never become uninteresting.

VALUABLE ACTIVITIES

There are two clubs in North Central which are doing especially well along creative and educational lines. They are the Engineering and Aviation clubs.

The Engineering club was started in North Central last semester by Mr. Kennedy for the purpose of promoting interest in the engineering field. The 65 boys in the club have visited many places of interest such as Washington Water Power, Bell Telephone company, Eastern Trust building, Fox theater, etc., where they have learned how construction is carried out on a large scale.

The purpose of the Aviation club is to promote interest in aviation among N. C. students and to prepare the members to take their places in that fast growing industry. This is accomplished by staging model airplane contests and through handling the Eaglerock glider which was purchased by the members this semester.

Through these clubs, the boys come in contact with real things, which give them a deeper impression and knowledge of work which is being carried out in these two important fields. This experience enables them to decide whether they are suited for work along such lines and if they find they are not, years of study and expense are eliminated.

North Central is known throughout the Northwest for its plan of student government. In most high schools, student government is hardly known—the laws of the school are laid down by the officials and teachers and the students are compelled to go by them.

But without the cooperation of every student, student government cannot long exist. From the time a student enters high school he should become imbued with a sense of loyalty and fair play towards his school and his fellow students.

Discipline is a thing which we all need. Even though we sometimes feel that students who are exercising their authority in the study halls, library and convocations are on the same plane with us, we should realize that they are not thinking of us as individuals but they are working for the welfare of the student body of North Central as a whole.

FIRST PUTZ STORY

By Robert Butz

At last the dream of the North Central Aviation club was realized. A glider owned and operated by the members of the club was something to be proud of. It was a financial venture of which few school clubs could boast. Not that they wanted to boast, but it's nice to be able to put in your nickel's worth if you choose.

Bob Saunders and Jack Schnatterly strolled home from the club meeting together; and as the babble of voices faded out in all directions, Jack said, "Say! come down to earth. You look as if you were dreaming about some of Frank's banana splits or something."

"Better than banana splits, old son," returned Bob. "I've been living in day dreams ever since this project started. My teachers are wondering whether I'm going to get a slim D or a large F. Some don't even have to wonder about it."

"Snap out of it' kid," advised Jack. "You've got to get your mind off these day dreams."

"I'm not a day dreamer," said Jack. "I'm a hard-boiled kid with a good hairbrain; I'm serious."

"Yeh! Too serious. Well, I've got to spar a few rounds with physics tonight. So long!"

"So long."

June thirteenth at last. Man! Man! No feeling like it. Free for three long summer months. It meant more than that to the North Central Aviation club. It meant flying days—time to become proficient at the controls of the club's glider with every day a thrill, and every minute's experience an asset.

The summer rolled along smoothly with Bob and Jack taking their turns at the glider. The club made numerous towed flights and many hops from the neighboring hills. Every boy in the club could make that glider talk fluent "turkey."

Near the middle of August, Gene Siebert received a letter from Mr. Arnold D. Jones, principal of the Fleeing (Mont.) High School. It was an invitation to demonstrate the glider before the Fleeing High School Aviation club.

After talking things over carefully, it was decided to accept the invitation. Mr. Young, the faculty adviser, said, "I think it would be fine. It would give the club valuable experience and it would promote greater interest in aviation."

As the whole club couldn't possibly go, a meeting was called to choose those who should have the chance, the committee being composed of the officers of the club and Mr. Young. When the club assembled to hear the verdict, all hearts turned up a few more revolutions per minute. Breathing ceased. Everyone squirmed and hoped.

Beside Mr. Young and Gene Siebert, eight boys were to go, Fred Holt, Ben York, Bob Sanders, Jack Schnatterly, and four others.

Yelps of glee crackled from eight throats. Groans of disappointment rumbled out from others at the same time. Gene said, "These fellows were not picked because they were any more deserving than you. All our names were placed in a box and drawn. The lucky fellows go."

On the eighteenth of August two cars and ten fellows were all set to go. The glider, on its hollow steel dolly was covered with a waterproof canvas. The entire club was out to wish the envoy a successful trip.

The boys left at eight o'clock in the morning amid the cheers and shouts of the club. Cries of "Good Luck," "Happy Landings," and "Hurrah for North Central," roused the surrounding neighborhood.

The caravan stopped about five o'clock that afternoon at Chesla. Due to the muddy roads and the encumbrance of the glider, they had not made very good time. Chesla squats high in the Rockies about six thousand feet above sea level. Another forty-five miles of winding roads did not look inviting to the boys so they camped at Chesla. The sky was black and the gathering storm clouds were pierced at intervals by flashes of lightning. The boys put the glider in a public garage with the cars and went to the hotel.

Some time after they had retired, they were awakened by a terrible roaring downpour which kept up until nearly dawn. About dawn they were attracted by excited voices in the hotel lobby. People were shouting and running about.

The boys dressed quickly and went down to the lobby. Every one was talking at once. The clerk was trying frantically to phone someone. He turned with a look of despair on his face, "The line is down."

Mr. Young questioned one of the men present.

"A cloud burst," groaned the man. "All the lines are down between here and Flecting. The dam is apt to break at any moment. Hundreds of people at Flecting will be drowned."

"Send a car," suggested Mr. Young.

"A car? Why, man, a car couldn't get down there over these roads."

The gang absorbed all this in breathless silence. At least they couldn't be heard above the roar of the storm. Then the water stopped falling as suddenly as it had started. Dawn was just breaking, and they could see the havoc wrought by that tremendous avalanche of rain.

Bob Sanders turned to Jack Schnatterly and began to speak rapidly.

"Don't be a nut," snapped Jack. "That thing has the gliding angle of a brick. It drops one foot for every thirteen feet headway. At the most you couldn't make over sixteen. It can't be done."

"Sure, but there is a whopping big breeze coming from that direction. It can't be more than twenty-five miles as the crow flies."

He turned to Mr. Young and laid the proposition before him.

"Impossible! I'm responsible for you. I couldn't let you go."

Mr. Young, it's one life against hundreds. I'm willing to go. It's up to us to risk it."

"All right, go to it. Get that ship together. Hurry! Seconds count."

The canvas came off. The fuselage was connected. Wings were fastened on. Pin and cotter keys fairly flew into place as if they were alive. Turn buckles whistled as they spun into place.

Jack and Bob argued heatedly as they worked.

"I don't care if it was your idea. Besides, you'd probably break your neck. Get this straight, fellow, I'm hopping this contraption."

"Over my dead body you will. Listen, Jack, the guy that leaves in this kite may be wearing a black suit for an indefinite period. It was my idea and I'm going."

"Nothing doing. I'm going. Make that into a hat and wear it."

Bob fished out a coin and flipped it in the sunlight

"Heads you go, Tails I go."

"No."

"Come on. Here goes."

The coin flashed. It lighted, rolled over and fell to rest. Tails! Jack swore. "Now, listen here—"

"A bargain's a bargain," retorted Bob as he fled to the hotel for his slicker.

The gang had taken the glider to a clear space and attached the shock cord. Bob Sanders climbed into the seat and waggled the controls. A couple of the boys had the wings. Jack was at the tail.

The rest of the boys with some of the resident of Chesla strung out on the shock cord. They walked out. They began to run. Swish! The glider sailed into the air. The strong updraft caught it and Bob went up like a homesick angel.

Exhilaration gripped him. Boy, this was life. Nothing like it. The air swished past his face, tugging at his clothes. The glider was rocking in the mild gale. The updraft from the hill was shooting him high in the air. He must get enough altitude to reach the suburbs of the city.

Looking below he saw the bulging dam. He could barely distinguish his waving comrades. Far in the hazy distance he could see the objective. He nosed down a trifle and began his long glide. Ascending, dropping, rising, falling, as the rolling hills helped him to maintain altitude.

The wind increased and the tough little glider careened like a piece of wastepaper sailing down the street. The controls were in constant motion. Rolling, pitching its way to the salvation of hundreds went the pride of the club.

As he fought the winged go-cart, Bob felt water spat him on the face. More rain. At times he was nearly pitched from the seat. His feet jounced from the rudder more than once, but he managed to scramble back without losing much headway.

It began to rain harder. The big drops beat with a deafening roar upon the fabric of the wings. The wind brought tears to Bob's eyes and he was soaked through. He was losing alitude fast now and he was only a little over half way. It was beginning to look as if Jack had been right.

Suddenly an immense puff of wind caught the glider and nearly threw it on its back. Bob righted it deftly in time to take advantage of the rising column of air.

He was forced high above the tree tops that had almost spitted him. Gazing down, he saw a few scattered houses and squares of graded streets. Nosing down he streaked for a landing. The wind whistled past the flying wires and his eyes began to water. Having no time to choose a landing place, he steered for the street. He eased back on the stick to level off. Crash! Rip. A sudden gust of wind had thrown him into a telephone pole.

The right wing crumpled, and the glider swung toward a large house on the street corner. The nose of the skid crashed through a wire screen and deposited Bob in the midriff of the snoring occupant of the sleeping porch.

"Quick," he shouted. "The telephone! The dam is bursting."

Leaving his "goggle-eyed" host to rub the sleep from his eyes, Bob ran down the stairs and found the telephone in the hall.

A few minutes later a local aviator had loaded his ship with a workman from the power plant and a box of dynamite. They flew to a spot below the dam where they blew out part of the river bed which allowed the bulk of the water to rush into a box canyon. Hundreds of people growled at their alarm clock that morning. Little did they know how lucky they were to hear that invigorating tinkle that starts a new day.

The Story of a Navajo Blanket

SECOND PRIZE STORY

By Margaret Carter

The Navajo Indian is surrounded by the colors of the desert sands, the gorgeous colors of the desert flowers, and the blue of the desert sky. The primitive Indian could not capture on a canvas the beauty he saw; he could only worship silently until he learned the art of blanket making. Sometimes, now, his squaw weaves blankets of such extraordinary beauty and rareness of design that white men marvel at them, and call them priceless.

Anselina arose early one bright summer morning. She gazed from the east door of the hogan into the glory of the rising sun. As she breathed deeply of the cool, invigorating morning air, her heart sent up a prayer to the God of the Dawn. She asked him to direct the weaving of her blanket; to make it pure as the rising sun, to make it strong as the sun of the noon, and beautiful as the sunset in Navajo land.

Today she would finish weaving the blanket she was going to send to the annual fair at Gallup, New Mexico in September. She felt rather resentful that it was the white man who was sponsoring the fair and offering the prize for the most beautiful, typical Navajo blanket, but she was thankful that someone had taken enough interest to save the art of blanket weaving from the degeneration into which it was gradually falling. There was, however, one prize bestowed by the young chief by wearing the winner's blanket in the Navajo dances.

Her mind turned back to the ceremonies she had witnessed the September before. She remembered how the frenzied dancing of the braves, the steady pulsing of the tom-toms, the savage cries of the men, and the lusty calls of the squaws had stirred her Indian blood, and had made her Indian heart beat a crescendo, louder, faster, wilder than the throbbing tom-toms of the aged chieftans.

She had watched the figure of Vicenti, the chief, sway forward—backward, weave in and out among the warriors, stomp his feet on the hard earth, fling his arms upward in supplication to the Gods of the Navajo. She had watched him whirl, abandon himself to the rhythm of the dance, his body vibrating with the pulse of the tom-toms. She had watched the flashing of his brilliant chief's blanket. She had seen the gleams of the fire fall upon its bright colors and its proud symbols. Her eager eyes had grown somber and a wave of jealously swept over her when she remembered that it was the beautiful Nina who had created the blanket. Nina's eyes—large, dark and happy—had followed her blanket through all the movements of the dance. Anselina's emotions had moved quickly. "She is smug," she thought, "she expects to have her blanket worn by the chief for years to come." Moved by a sudden impulse, Anselina had vowed that at the next gathering of the nomad tribes, her blanket should be the one to be worn by the chief in the dances; that her blanket should be more beautiful than any ever woven by a Navajo girl.

As she had stood before the ceremonial fire, a picture of her blanket as it should be, formed itself against the background of flames. Its beauty haunted her dreams till the spring had come, and she had finally begun its weaving.

The background of the blanket was the warm red of the sun. As the blanket had grown in size, so had hope grown in the heart of the maid, and her hands had been happy as they wove.

In June her small brother had died of an incurable disease. For days Anselina had not had even the desire to weave, but finally she had resumed her work. Her long, slender brown fingers deftly wove the design that she loved, but her heart was heavy, and sadness was interwoven with every stitch. During the whole long summer, the blanket learned of her dreams, her sorrows, her hopes of happiness, but it kept them secret.

Anselina's thought returned to the present, and she found herself still gazing into the heart of the new born sun. She walked slowly to her loom prepared to do the best work that she could. The finishing touches alone remained. Although there was no need of hurry as there was yet two months before the fair, Anselina wished to finish her blanket so she might do some weaving for the tourists, as her family was in need of money. She squatted herself tailor fashion before her loom and commenced to weave.

The haughty Nina viewed the progress of Anselina's blanket with disfavor and fear. Her quick Navajo eye saw its beauty, its perfect patterns, and rich colors. Her own blanket, now almost completed, was beautiful, but there was nothing fascinating about it. The design was one she had copied from an old, old Bayuta blanket. This was permissible in the contest, but Anselina's originality was certainly an asset to her.

"The prize will be Anselina's this year," she thought sullenly, "she will wear beautiful moccasins and soft doe-skin leggings. She will wear a silver necklace and ear-rings set with turquoise. Her skirt will hold the brilliance of the sun. She will watch her blanket on the shoulders of Vicenti and she will be happy, while I shall be humiliated, and shamed. Surely, something can prevent this from happening."

It was in late July, that as the sun mounted quickly to its place overhead, Anselina sat at the edge of the desert weaving, she had but a few more stitches to take when she heard a rumbling, blurred sound far behind her. She turned swiftly and saw a large moving circle of dust on the horizon of the desert. It came steadily closer, and soon the girl was able to distinguish the graceful bodies of wild horses. Surely she was viewing a huge mirage; a mirage that seemed alive, that made the still, hot air resound with the pounding of many hoofs on the desert sand. Now it was close at hand, and Anselina saw that it was a group of frightened, wild horses stampeding across the desert. The horses were very close now, and were sweeping toward her wildly, swiftly, madly. Suddenly she realized her danger. She threw herself behind one of the poles of her loom just before the horses were upon her. Dust and sand whirled dizzily about her. A huge, black stallion ran against her, knocking her and the loom to the ground. A dainty brown colt raced across the blanket, his sharp hoofs ripping it and distorting the figures. Streaks of black, of brown, of gray swarmed past her, flinging suffocating, choking sand into her face. In a moment the herd was gone.

Anselina arose unsteadily to her feet. When the dust had drifted away, she discerned a solitary rider following the horses—Pedro, the brother of Nina! He was lashing the horses on, on across the desert. Anselina stood gazing after him. In that moment she wanted only to lie down in the dust with her ruined work; her dreams, her ambitions and hopes, her days of labor in the heat of the New Mexican sun; to lie down and rest upon the dusty heap of torn wool. Instead she picked a tattered particle of brilliant red yarn from the dust. It lay as still and lifeless in her palm as a torn fragment of a butterfly's wing, but its red coloring was pulsing, and alive, Red—the color symbolising the sun—represented in her dream pattern everything in her life that was good and beautiful. The symbols of her blanket had represented purity, and beauty and strength. Was she going to let the jealousy and smallness of another girl kill her hopes?

She worked for the rest of the day setting up her broken loom, mending torn threads and retouching tattered figures. For many days from early dawn she mended and wove, always with a prayer on her lips that her work should not be in vain. And into her blanket was woven wisdom, and forgiveness and patience, touching it with a mellow dignity. It became a human document of her happiness, her sorrow, her growth in wisdom and sympathy. It was a picture of the beautiful, strong soul of the plain little Indian girl.

It is years, now, since that momentous morning. When Anselina's grandchildren are gathered about the evening fire she tells them the story of the weaving of the blanket and the fair at Gallup. With eager eyes and proud hearts they listen as she describes to them the beauty of the dances, and the grace of Vicenti, the young chief who wore her blanket; for Vicenti is their grandfather, and royal blood flows in their veins.

The blanket is a prized possession, now, and Anselina's grandchildren love to tell of the genius of its creator. But only the blanket knows, and holds forever the dreams, and sorrows and happiness of the little Navajo maid.

Forbidden Eagle

THIRD PRIZE STORY

By Ruby E. Hull

Long after the ever-encroaching pale-face has wrested the broad expanses of their former domain from them, long after the buffalo herds have ceased to roam, long after their forests have been cut down and their silent rivers lined with houses, the Indians continue to tell their children the legend of Forbidden Eagle and Neehanana.

One evening at sunset, long ago, a tall beautiful Indian girl stood at the edge of the forest; behind her the pines were silent and dark, and before her was the setting sun. As slender and straight as the willow for which she had been named, Neehanana (Red Willow) waited, her eyes watching the trail that wound out of another forest beyond the immediate rocky area before her. The sun had set three times since Chief Popetah had left with all the young braves of the Hidatsa village to make war on the enemy Yumak. Red Willow had stolen forth to meet the returning warriors, for with them was Maishu, her lover.

When at last the band of Indians appeared, and she eagerly searched the group with her eyes, the expectant look on her face turned to one fearful and sad.

"Happy return to our camp," she greeted "Is Maishu not with you?"

Chief Popetah's old eyes greeted her mournfully. "This day brings much sadness to pretty Red Willow, for Maishu returns not. We have suffered sorely at the hands of the treacherous Yumak."

"My Maishu has gone to the Happy Hunting Ground?" Her Indian stoicism which prevented the showing of great emotion seemed to increase the fear and terror that swept over her young heart.

Popetah was not certain that Maishu had been killed. In a disastrous retreat from the Yumak camps, he was the one who had been either felled or captured.

Neehanana, ready to accept any possibility but that Maishu was dead, seized the hope. "Brave Eagle was captured," she declared. "But he is a brave warrior, and will trick the Yumak. I shall wait till the sun sets. He will return."

But he did not return that evening. "He will come yet," she insisted. Other older and wiser Indians showed her that there was no possibility, yet she would not give up. She went each evening to the forest's edge to wait, in order that she might show her faith in his return. The other Indians admired her devotion and belief, but pitied her for the disillusion that would surely be hers.

The days passed slowly, one by one, with Neehanana going each evening to her vigil. But each day her cheeks were less red, her step less young, and her face more unhappy.

Then it was that her mind began to dwell on the eagle. As she had stood at the forest's edge, she had noticed him many times, high on the limb of an old pine snag. At first he was just a part of woodland, like the sand-colored deer that bounded by, or the bluejay that called from above. However, as the days passed into weeks with ebbing hope that Maishu would return, her mind went more often with a melancholy interest to the eagle, contemplating the strangeness of his being there so constantly. More and more she watched for him, more and more she thought of him.

Then an odd thought struck her. Maybe it was that—Although at first she shook away the suggestion, her superstitious mind continually returned to it, to be fascinated and impelled by it. At last the chance thought seemed an established truth, and her mind had surrounded it with a story.

Yes, that eagle was Maishu, returned to her, yes, but returned in the form of the eagle which he had admired and been named for. He had been so unhappy in the Happy Hunting Ground without her, that the Great Spirit had allowed him to return in such a form until Neehanana should be ready to come to the Happy Hunting Ground. "He was forbidden to come as an Indian," she explained, "for the Great Spirit was angry that he let himself be killed by the Yumak."

Accepting her story, the tribe called the spirit-bird "Forbidden Eagle." And each sunset they saw Neehanana go forth to keep her vigil.

Then one evening the eagle was not there. The limb on which he sat was empty. Neehanana stood silent and ill looking for him. "Where is Forbidden Eagle?" she asked the sky. Then she saw him, a dark sailing speck high in the blue. The spot grew larger and larger, lower and lower, sailing towards her. She waited for him to begin using his wings to fly to the snag. But, his wings set, he soared by it, lower and lower. Then she knew!

Early in her Indian girlhood she had learned how many an eagle dies—that when a mysterious voice tells him his last hour has come, he mounts high into the azure he has haunted, sets his wings and soars earthward, to reach it—dead! Just so was Forbidden Eagle coming now!

With half horror and half fascination, Neehanana watched the death flight. "Forbidden Eagle dies," she muttered. "Neehanana does not want to live longer." The bird sailed lower, lower, towards her. At last it struck the ground, burying itself in the ferns and grass some thirty feet away. "Forbidden Eagle has come to Red Willow," she murmured as she started toward the place.

When Neehanana did not return to camp, some Indians were dispatched to look for her. They found her lying dead at the edge of the forest, the dead eagle by her side. On her face was the expression of the gladness that people feel when they suddenly meet a loved one from whom they have long been separated.

SAND—'TIS WHIRLING -

SECOND PRIZE POEM

By June Armstrong

On Northern Africa's white sand
A broiling sun glares fiercely down,
The heat waves rise in shimmering band
Beneath the sun's all potent frown.
A dry breath stirs the atmosphere—
Hot, settled dust arises, clear,
'To flaunt before the sun's bold leer,
Yet whirling—whirling—

Scattered far in blinding quest—
Piling up before the power
'The sand seeks out unsettled rest
In low, flat mounds, a restful hour,
But yet it rages, on and on—
In blinding, choking spirals drawn,
Sand even with the dawn
'Tis whirling—whirling—

Pack Rat's Hoard

FOURTH PRIZE STORY

By Eugene Eugene

It was an old Ford, and it had done its duty nobly for ten long years. It was, indeed, a lonely spot for an automobile to take a vacation. We were on a lonely mountain road far from human habitation. Night was approaching; the sunset was beautiful, we had to admit; but who has the time to watch Nature paint masterpieces when he is as far from civilization, a warm fire and food?

We were in a predicament, but Old John who lived in this country, laughed at my fears of spending a cold night in the mountains.

"Well, greenhorn," he grinned—he always called me that though I have known him for twenty-two years—"it appears as if we'll have a little distance to foot it now that your gasoline buggy's gone dead on us."

He watched me gaze around and then said, "There was a time when you could smell shelter and a trout pool a mile off. Too bad. Too bad."

Far off beneath a rocky cliff, I could see a small clearing and in the center of it a cabin of rough-hewn logs. I was unable to perceive the trout pool; but if John said there was one, I believed him.

After scraping up a bamboo fishing rod, a flashlight and an old frying pan, we set out for the cabin. A half-hour's walking brought us to its door. While John fished, I thrust open the door of our lodging place. It was a well-built little cabin. Its logs were over a foot thick and the mud and moss chinking still held.

Opposite the entrance was a large stone fireplace with bunks on either side half way to run. In the middle of the room were a rough-hewn table and several stools. A few other small items were scattered over the cabin including a large flat pan, an ax and a shovel. Over everything was a coating of the dust of many years. The place did not, in spite of its sturdiness, give a feeling of security; instead it seemed as a tomb. Half-fearfully I entered and peered about. Why had that unknown occupant built the cabin in this spot? Why had he left? I tried to imagine myself back in days of long ago. A stealthy step sounded behind me. It was only old John carrying a beautiful string of mountain trout.

"Where's your fire?" he demanded.

I grinned sheepishly and admitted that the place seemed to get me.

"It's got others, too," grunted John. With that enigmatic statement he started cleaning the fish leaving me to make a fire. In a few minutes it was blazing vigorously and golden trout were frying in the pan. After a hearty meal, John set a pine log on the fire; and we brought our stools up by our cheery light. I drew out my pipe, John followed my example taking out his old corn cob. After watching the antics of the flames for some moments, he started his story.

"Well, partner, perhaps you wondered why I made that remark before dinner."

I nodded.

"About fifty years ago, a man known as John Benson left a comfortable home back in Illinois to go out West. That was not unusual. The West offered many opportunities—homesteads and railroad lands for farming, the growing cities of Spokane, Seattle, Frisco and—gold. John Benson got the fever. He made several fortunes and lost them again. Finally, with a single companion, he started prospecting in this wilderness.

"In the meantime his wife back in Illinois had died. A young son came West to follow his father's footsteps. He found him on his death bed in this cabin. He and his companion had slipped on a mountain trail. The companion was dead; John was nearly so; however he was able to drag himself to his cabin and to die in his son's arms.

"Boy, John Benson was my father."

I jumped up. "Your father!"

"Yes, I buried him out there under the pines he loved so well. Before dying, he told me to pull up a board in the cabin to find his gold. I did but found nothing.

"It had simply vanished. But those deaths and the disappearance of the gold gave the place a bad name. It is said to be haunted."

I looked at him expecting a wink at the last remark but he was serious. After a short time, we lay down on the floor before the fire and went to sleep.

During the night I was awakened by the noise of something running on the roof. I remembered John's story and shivered in the cold air. "Are these ghosts?" I wondered. I feared to move but finally fell asleep again to be wakened by the morning sun.

I reached for my knife in order to make a few shavings for the breakfast fire. It had disappeared from the table, I called to John thinking that he, perhaps, was using it, but it was not to be found. Then I remembered the "ghosts" on the roof, and mentioned the fact to John.

"Pack rats," he smiled. He explained that the little animals delight in the noise produced when they run on a deserted hut. "The rat is a beautiful little creature with blue-gray fur and a bushy tail. He is known as a practical joker and often steals bright bits of metal lugging or packing them off to his nest or to a cache. Sometimes he leaves something else in place of the object he takes, and for that reason is also known as a trade rat."

"Could I get my knife back?" I queried.

"If you find his cache. They are liable to be most anywhere." We were out of the cabin now, in the sunshine. "Maybe under your feet."

I looked down. I seemed to see a dim trail leading under the cabin. I stooped and peered under our shelter of the previous night. There lay my knife in a pile of rubbish, but something else caught my eye, a bright little pebble. I drew it forth, a surprisingly heavy little stone.

"What's that?" John demanded hoarsely.

He looked at it closely; then threw himself down and drew forth the whole pile of rubbish. There were other pebbles in small, rotten sacks.

"What's the matter?" I cried.

"Son, it's the gold," and he laughed at my appearance for I was struck speechless.

To make a long story short, it was gold, several thousand dollars worth. Some ancient pack rat had removed John Benson's gold to this spot. Unknowingly one of his descendants had led Benson's son to his rightful property. Several days later we made our way to civilization in a repaired Ford with the pack rat's hoard.

The sun was rising then, opening a new day. The rays were not faint but strong, beautiful, clear. They were showing old John the way to a new happiness and contentment in old age. They shown on the little mountain cabin giving to it a beauty that may only be found in deserted things in a morning sun.

COLOR

THIRD PRIZE POEM

By Mary Roller

Green, the grass that is waving
 'Neath my lovely old pine trees;
Blue, the birds that are singing
 Such lilting melodies.
Grey, the water that sparkles
 In the cradle of old Squaw Bay;
Sweet, the fragrant odor
 Of the flowers that blossom in May.

Yellow, the meadows are painted
 Oh, buttercup, child of the sun
Tell me, you radiant wonder,
 Is that where your gold comes from?
Lavender glens in the moonlight
 The tinkle of a fairy bell;
I am caught in the web of color
 And held in a magic spell.

During the year of 1908, students organized a debating society in North Central which was the beginning of a long series of interesting debates in the school. The interest by students was so outstanding that it was necessary to segregate them into two separate divisions by February, 1909. The two clubs were the literary and the debating societies.

Teams progressed rapidly, and in 1915 North Central won its first state honors in argumentation. Girls had their first opportunities to be on the teams in 1915.

From the year of 1920 through 1930, Drs. R. E. and T. M. Ahlquist gave one hundred dollars every spring to the best debaters of two different groups. The two groups were the senior and junior, one for experienced and one for the inexperienced debaters, respectively.

This spring an entirely new system of debates was inaugurated to take the place of the Ahlquist groups. The system is for students in their junior, sophomore or freshman years who have not had any previous debate experience in North Central.

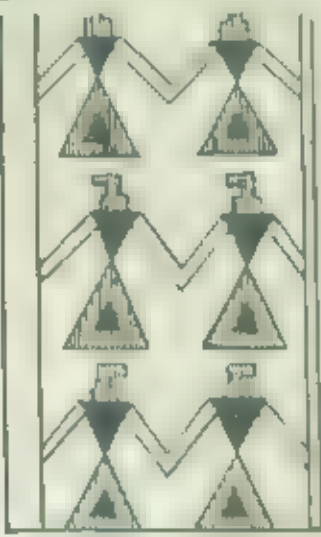

A school medal is given to the student showing the best argumentative ability and cooperation during the contest. The judges for the contest are Mr. Becher, debate coach, and two other members of the faculty.

An exceptionally large turnout was witnessed when 36 students signed up for debate. They were: Andrietta Hutton, Mary Tinn, Barbara Moore, Dorothy Tess, Curtis Dunn, Pearl Von Dessel, Mary Mills, Gwendolyn and Gulnevere Derrick, Veeda Spencer, Grace O'Rourke, Betty Thomas, Delores Engel, Willard Burchett, Leona Meyer, Angeline Setoly, Josephine Veredillo, Mary Lou Richards, Donald Page, Earl Ferrier, Ruth Buchanan, Betty Hollerback, Katherine Terry, John Marshall Blount, Roy English, Martha Pattisner, Marguerite Cook, Gladys Hawley, Gene MacCulloch, Gertrude Kirken, Katherine Lund, Evelyn Bulley, Ruth Johnson, Ruby Nichols, Lois Hereth and Florence Mathison.

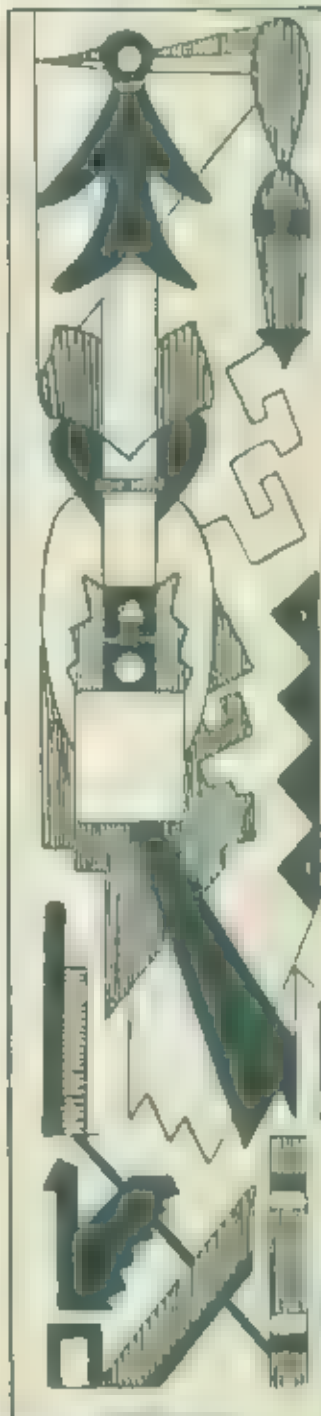

On March 31, an elimination debate was held to pick two teams for the finals. The subject used for the debates for the tryouts and finals was, "Resolved: That high school should teach no trade subjects," and was one of interest to the students.

At the tryouts March 31, twelve students were selected to debate in the preliminary debates on April 14. The six picked for the teams will debate later in the season for the school medal. The twelve selected are: Ruth Buchanan, Marguerite Cook, Delores Engel,

The first part of the book is devoted to a general introduction to the subject of the history of the English language. It discusses the various factors which have influenced the development of the language, such as contact with other languages, internal changes, and the influence of social and cultural conditions. The second part of the book is a detailed account of the historical development of the English language from its earliest forms to the present day. It covers the Old English period, the Middle English period, and the Modern English period, discussing the major changes in grammar, vocabulary, and pronunciation. The third part of the book is a collection of exercises designed to help students understand the historical development of the English language. These exercises include reading passages from Old English texts, analyzing grammatical structures, and comparing modern English with its historical counterparts.

Bookkeepers, Maurice Richter and Lucille Devoe.

The North Central News is one of the outstanding features of the school.

On September 25, 1917, the monthly magazine was changed to a five column weekly under the direction of W. J. Sanders and E. E. Green. Raphael Budwin, the first editor in chief, was assisted by a staff of 22 members.

In 1921, The News was first printed in the North Central print shop.

Since that time The News has often won national recognition. In January, 1929, it was given membership in the National Scholastic Press Association, whose insignia it now bears at the top of each editorial page.

First place was awarded to The News in the all-American contest in December, 1922. In 1923, first place in headlines and make up was awarded to it in the Central Interscholastic Press Association contest.

Sigma Delta Chi, an honorary journalistic fraternity of the University of Washington, awarded The News first prize as the best high school paper in the state in the fall of '24 and the spring of '25. In 1927 and 1929, it received all-American rating.

The North Central News supports all school enterprises and helps to put over such activities as the operetta, class play, orphan drive and the Christmas seal sale. It has often backed oratorical and English contests sponsored by outside papers and magazines. Also it supports worthwhile projects, such as the Community Chest and the collection of tinfoil for crippled children. A special issue of The News, the Pow Wow edition, is edited each year.

The News has put forth a great effort to make North Central a leader among the city high schools, and hardly any piece of worthwhile information passes without its due recognition.

VACATION

By HESSIE BARNES

Vacation—that word leads me far
Away on salty seaward trips;
Reminds me of the hole-in-one and par,
Makes me think of spicy ships,
And unhampered, care-free dreams
Beneath the sun's hot tropic beams.

It makes me long for rocky trails
Up unknown, steep, inclining places;
It makes me think of the click of rails,
Of tennis and lakes and wild chases.
Vacation lures one to distant heights
And joyful days and restful nights.

GIRLS' LEAGUE CENTRAL COUNCIL

The Girls' League Central Council, which was organized the same time that the Girls' League was established, in March, 1918, is a council of the girls who are heads of the departments in the League and of the officers of the League. Room representative floor chairman, the Big Sister chairman and the Big Cousin chairman are also members.

The Central Council creates the policies of the League and plans in detail the projects which are to be carried out that semester. It approves all the expenditures of the League and, in truth, is the machinery of that organization.

The four officers of the League are the only officers of the Central Council which are elected, the rest being appointative office.

The members of the Central Council for this semester are:

Doris Lee, president; Marilla Bardsley, vice president; Hazel Miles, secretary; Lenore Morse, treasurer; Margaret Brodrecht, Rose Johnson, Marjorie Masterman, Pamela Perso, Eleanor Brey, Mary Dus, Virginia Wolters,

BOYS' FEDERATION

The Boys' Federation was organized in November, 1918. The object of this organization is to promote extra-curricular activity among the boys of the school. The executive council consists of the officers, the class representatives, the department heads and the active members advised by Mr. Bradford, the faculty director. Most of the business of the Federation is carried on through this council.

This organization is divided into four departments: the community service, the school service, the personal service and the vocational departments. Each department is headed by a student and carries out its work through committees.

It is the duty of the community service to organize and work with committees dealing with community and national needs. The duty of the school service is to organize and work with committees dealing with the school as a whole. The duty of the personal service is to organize and manage committees dealing with the needs of the individual members of the Federation.

The duty of the vocational department is to sponsor vocational talks and make a survey of the most important vocations.

Great stress is laid on parliamentary procedure and civic training. Each semester the boys are registered and given work along the lines in which they are most interested.

The officers of the Federation are the president, the vice president, a clerk, a financial secretary and a treasurer.

The duty of the president is to preside at all meetings of departments and committees; to keep in touch with all Federation activities and to perform other duties pertaining to his office. The duty of the vice president is to take the place of the president in his absence, to make Federation survey of all the boys in the school and to consult with and assist other officers.

The duty of the clerk is to keep a record of all Federation and executive council meetings, to post notices, and to register all the boys in North Central at the beginning of the semester. The duty of the financial secretary is to collect all dues, and keep an accurate record of all the money received and paid out.

The duty of the treasurer is to receive all the money from the financial secretary, give receipts for the payment of bills properly authorized.

RADIO CLUB

A group of boys interested in radio organized for the purpose of promoting a general interest along radio lines in 1921.

Since this time the Radio club has been busy continually undertaking and developing many radio projects. Under the direction of A. L. Smith the club installed a spark transmitter and a great deal of radio exchange was carried on under the call of 7Y1.

Through the efforts of the Radio club the name of North Central was spread throughout the west and northwest through radio station KFIO.

For the past year the Radio club has been interested in short wave reception and transmission. The club built a fifty watt transmitter, a well filtered power supply and a four tube Schnell circuit short wave receiver. With this equipment exchanges with stations as far as Australia are possible.

A Presidents' council of North Central was organized for the purpose of bringing about better cooperation between the different organizations in the school and to support the library staff.

The membership consists of the presidents of all the student organizations, with the librarian, Miss Bacon, as faculty director.

The group is endeavoring to aid the library by gaining cooperation of the students in returning books. This semester they formed committees to go through the lockers of the students and find the books that are overdue or that have been taken out without being checked

The Masque club was formed as a literary society in May, 1910. In 1911, because of the joint high school, no clubs were recognized, so the Masque club met at the homes of the members under the name of the Fortnightly club. During the year of 1912, the members decided to take up the dramatic line as well as the literary. It was then that the name Theatre Masque was adopted.

benefit of the playfield. Two one-act plays were given in December.

The membership is limited to thirty, fifteen boys and fifteen girls. The object is to encourage literary, dramatic, vocal and dancing talent.

The club's program for the month is as follows: Two readings of plays, one report on some dramatic event and one miscellaneous program.

This semester the club presented three one-act plays, directed by students. To the winning cast, they presented a trophy.

BANKING OFFICERS

Officers of the banking association are chosen from the first period office training class. The president is chosen according to the work he has done the previous semester.

The president's duties are numerous, for he has charge of distributing all supplies and making reports. On Tuesday he works all day on the banking, and every other day he spends part of his time attending to it.

The head cashiers do the main checking of accounts, while the assistants take care of the money and slips. Every slip must be checked before it goes to the bank.

While their service to the school is great, the officers also gain for themselves actual experience that will be helpful to them in the business world.

The name decided upon was derived from the name of Carrie Chapman Catt, a prominent social reform worker. The purpose of the club was to interest girls in debating. Katherine Keisling, as leader of the movement, was the first president.

During the year, each girl either participates in a debate or gives a report on some literary subject. Twice a semester the girls gather for a social meeting; one of these is the initiation.

The Cattonians have a booth at the Pow Wow where they sell noise makers. Twice the News campaign has been successfully handled by the club.

During the last semester the club has been especially active. Honor awards were given to the most valuable player on the basketball, baseball and track teams. In connection with the Pow Wow, the club put on a Junior Delta Hi-Jinx in the auditorium. The club has organized two successful basketball teams and has played different teams in the city.

All Deltas have to be prominent in some line of extra-curricular activity in order to get into the club.

The biggest activity of this club is the Delta Hi-Jinx, a vaudeville show presented every spring.

AVIATION CLUB

In 1928 Mr. Feker and Neil McLain conceived the idea of starting the Aviation club to promote further interest in aviation.

Mr. Youngman, faculty director, is deserving much credit in the promoting of aeronautics in North Central. The club members make models which require patience and skill in the constructions and which perform remarkably like real airplanes. The builders of the models meet and solve many technical problems which are found in the construction of the larger planes.

This winter the club bought a glider so that all the members could learn to fly.

During the semester, talks were given to the club by both army and commercial flyers. The intricacies of stunts and formation flying and bombing were explained.

In 1918 the French club, Sans Souci, was organized for the purpose of promoting further interest in and knowledge of France and the French people.

The meaning of San Souci is "carefree," not "careless," as many people translate it.

Meetings are conducted partly in English and partly in French. The members give plays, readings, talks and songs, and at the close of the meeting the entire club often sings "Red and Black," which has been translated into French by Miss Margaret Bement.

Two years ago the club was reorganized into a girls' club. This year the club helped the French 5 class in setting material for a Guignol theatre and puppets. It has been active in getting things for the French department of the school, and in helping with general projects. For two years Sans Souci has contributed to the success of the Pow Wow by conducting a candy bar booth.

ENGINEERS' CLUB

The Engineers' club was organized in September, 1930, for the purpose of giving every North Central boy who is interested in engineering a chance to study it. Each type of engineering is studied for a short time.

Mr. Neuman, a science teacher at North Central, is faculty director of the club. The present officers are: Elmer Nelson, president; Howard Bayley, vice president; Mack Koon, secretary; Ben Collins, treasurer; Harold Morrison, corresponding secretary; and Wilbur Patrick, sergeant-at-arms.

The charter officers were: Merrill Tester, president; Harold Morrison, vice president; Wilbur Patrick, secretary; Ben Collins, treasurer; Moreland Jones, corresponding secretary; and Walter Peterson, sergeant-at-arms.

Each month the club from North Central meets with the Engineers' clubs from Lewis and Clark and Hillyard. Each club holds a meeting once a week at its own school. Special speakers address the clubs and films or slides are usually shown.

The club is considering dividing into committees, each committee devoting all of its time to study one phase instead of spending a little time on each phase.

SENIOR COUNSELORS

This group composes a new department in the Girls' League. It was organized last semester under the direction of Miss Ellis for the purpose of helping freshman girls, those entering from Havermale and other new girls.

Each girl on the committee meets with ten new girls and explains the laws and rules of the school to them and helps them in any way she can to make them feel a part of the school. Several times during the year the counselors met and discussed problems of leadership.

The work of the counselors has been extremely successful and the new girls have found North Central an easier place with which to become acquainted because of them.

STUDENT CONDUCT BOARD

The object of the Student Conduct Board is to keep order in the library, convocation and in the halls of North Central.

There are five members on the board: President, secretary, library commissioner, convocation commissioner and traffic commissioner. These offices are filled by students appointed by the president of the Associated Students Council, the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation in consultation with the faculty advisors of the organizations. These appointments need the approval of the Associated Students Council.

A meeting of the board is held every Monday morning in room 126, and any student who wishes may appeal his case for disorderly conduct before the board at these meetings. A sentence is given according to the importance of the offence and the number of times committed.

The work of the Conduct Board is probably the most difficult of that of any organization in North Central. The cooperation of the students in this important project is a splendid compliment to the spirit of the school.

CLASS PLAY

Duley, the senior class play, was given Friday and Saturday nights, May 8 and 9, in the North Central auditorium.

Duley, written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, is a modern play which takes place in the suburban home of Dulcinea and her husband Duley, the young wife of Gordon Smith, wishing to help make her husband's business a success, plans a week-end party at her home. She invites Mr. Forbes, a big business man with whom Gordon is planning to go into a big business merger. Vincent Leach, a scenarist, and Schuyler Van Dyck, a talented musician are some mere acquaintances of Duley's, but as they seem very attractive to her, she also invites them to the party.

Thinking that she can aid Gordon further, Duley invites Angela Forbes, the daughter of C. Roger Forbes, and his wife. As always planning is the main fault with Duley, she cleverly arranges a love affair between Vincent Leach and Angela.

Bill Parker, Duley's brother, who is also interested in Angela, is annoyed by the party.

Sterrett, Forbes' advertising man, is in love with Angela and is made very uncomfortable by the presence of Leach.

Ellen, the mysterious maid with a shadowy past, causes much excitement over a string of pearls. Mrs. Forbes, much to the annoyance of her husband, seems interested in the talented Van Dyck.

Patterson, a young attorney, appears in the latter part of the play, and his part is very important to the outcome of the plot. The story had an unexpected climax.

Those who played in the cast Friday night were:

ONE ACT PLAY CONTEST

"An Emergency Case," directed by Clarence Talbot, won the prize in the one-act play contest presented by members of the senior dramatics class, Friday, March 13, 1931.

Mrs. Leonard presented to the prize winning cast the trophy cup offered by the Theater Masque society. The winners were also given a silver loving cup, a surprise award, by Dr. C. W. Talbot.

The three judges, Miss McKenna, Miss Greenberg and Miss Kellog judged the plays on their appropriateness, selection of characters, interpretation of lines and off stage effects.

The winning drama was very effective, the scene taking place in an operating room. The white dress of the doctors and the white furniture of the operating room stood out against the dark background, and by the slow fading of the lights the tragedy of the drama was brought out.

A large crowd filled the auditorium, and all plays were presented successfully. The double string quartet played several numbers before the plays and once between the acts. Members of the Masque furnished entertainment between plays. Genevieve Baltzell gave an acrobatic dance, and Helen Dunder played several popular numbers on the piano between the second and third presentations.

North Central Band

[illegible]

Orchestra

Mr. J. H. Smith, Director of Music, is seated in the center of the front row. The orchestra consists of approximately 40 members, including students and faculty. The instruments visible include brass (trumpets, tubas), woodwinds (saxophones, flutes), and percussion (drums, cymbals). The background shows a portion of a building with a gabled roof.

The Band

The North Central band is one of the outstanding organizations of the school as it offers the opportunity of training in music to all those that desire it, and at the present there are 110 boys. The fundamental unit, the full band, is divided into smaller units that give them training in special branches. The more experienced musicians belong to the concert band which is a feature of the band concert given semi-annually to raise funds for the maintenance expenses of the organization.

The junior band gives training to the more inexperienced boys; the saxophone quartet and brass sextet represent the band when a small group is required; and the pep band is present when some real live popular music is called for.

The band and its auxiliary units make many appearances during the year, at convocation, athletic contests, stunts, civic functions, banquets, parades and broadcasts.

Fifty selected musicians represented Spokane in the band's sixth annual pilgrimage to the Wenatchee Apple Blossom festival. The trip afforded unique opportunities for musical training and character development for which the school is grateful to the people and the chambers of commerce of Spokane and Wenatchee.

Lowell C. Bradford, the director of the band for the last ten years, deserves all the praise and applause that the students of North Central can give him because of his untiring efforts and unexcelled leadership which have developed the band into one of the most outstanding organizations of its kind in the northwest.

Officers of the band for the past semester are: Lowell C. Bradford, director; Walter C. Hawes, business advisor; Earl McCarthy, bandmaster; William Pollard, bandmaster; Harold Fry, bandmaster; Robert Johnson, business manager; Gale Beids, equipment manager; Theron Duerfeldt, assistant manager; Verrol Henry, librarian; Cleo Bullard, librarian; Walter Boomer, John McDonnell and Clarence Talbot, drum majors.

The Orchestra

One of North Central's most worthwhile enterprises is the orchestra. It was organized in the spring of 1909 with about ten members. Since that time, the orchestra has grown steadily until now it has a personnel of fifty-five musicians.

C. Olin Rice, who has been in charge of the North Central music department since the founding of the school, deserves the credit for the honors that the orchestra has brought the school.

The orchestra is always ready to support any school enterprise at any time. It gives its support to the class play and graduation exercises and on several other occasions.

It puts on a very interesting convocation of classical music every semester.

The members of the orchestra are:

First violin—Maxine Armstrong, Dorothy Gregg, Ruth Gladstone, Esther Jorgenson, Carl Butz, Robert Brandt, Arnola Sharpnack, Florence Reed, Frances Beam, Del Waterhouse, Lawrence Bone, Howard Burger.

Second violin—Ethel Anna, Helen Ludwigsen, Armand McEwen, Leo Riordan, Ted Lyford, Edward Grimmer, Eugene Adams, Ruth Barnes, Bill Cole, George Fusch, Robert Armstrong, Merlin Shaw, Mary Gordon, Elaine Myers and Helen Wurmley.

Viola—Muriel Glayzer, Marjorie Joyner, Elaine Brown and Gladys Fees.

Cello—Constance Jordan, Kathleen Gerking, Lorraine Sullivan and Philip Walborn.

Bass—Ed Atwood and Florence Schweppe; flute, Harold Chase; first clarinet, Francis Drinkard; second clarinet, Joe Scherr; oboe, Bill Dibblee; bassoon, Cleo Bullard; first trumpet, Neal Newman; second trumpet, Jack Gunn; first horn, Walter Boomer; second horn, Roland Zahrlly; trombone, Bob Brey and Bob Seymour; drums, James McBroom; and piano, Helen Dundee.

Delta Hi-Jinx

Music, trio songs, plays, dances and a chorus were presented at the seventeenth annual Delta Hi-Jinx, March 27 and 28, as evidence that the Hi-Jinx was better than ever before.

The acts pleased the large audiences which attended both nights.

The officers of the club that put over this successful entertainment are: Bob Grieve, senior grandmaster; Bill Shaw, junior grandmaster; Irwin Stewart, scribe; and Harold Hinkle, exchequer.

Those who had charge of the Hi-Jinx this year were: Bill Dibblee, manager; Earl McCarthy, business; Junior Metcalfe and Bob Adams, property; and George Tiefel, Jack Misselhorn, advertising managers.

The program for the evening was announced by Frank Rodgers and Gordon Reckord, the masters of ceremonies.

The program was as follows:

N. C. pep band composed of Pollard, McCarthy, Henry, Brey, Rowan, Fry, Scherr, Dibblee, McBroom and Bankson.

"Love's Dilemma," a skit, presented by Harold Hinkle, Howard McInerney and Irwin Stewart.

"America's Greatest Walkathon," Reckord, Misselhorn, Luenow, Cooney, Adams, Anderson, Martin, Schinke, Fuller, Preston, Colburn, Peterson, Johnson, Hinkle, Grieve, Green, Tiefel and Lawson.

Song by Benton Roberts.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat," cast, John, Bob Grieve; Mary, George Tiefel; hero, Stephen Fuller; heroine, Jack Misselhorn; chief villain, Lloyd Bennett; bad man, Earl Neuru; the man in the bowler hat, Norman Cooney.

"The Delta Trio," Ray Hendricks, Bill Pollard and Bob Crosby.

"The Follies of '31," Hinkle, James, Richter, Colburn, Green, Anderson, Luenow, Johnson, Schunke, Peterson, Preston; flower girls, Dahlen, Dortch; strong man, McInerney; dancer, Tiefel.

"The Tumblers," Bill Shaw, Charles Hauter and Bob Gray.

"Finale," singing of the Delta song by the complete Delta group.

ming meet to Lewis and Clark. Two records were broken.

30. Twenty-two are named on the special honor roll. Tamarack story winners are announced. Robert Buta and Florence Sloanaker win first prize in the story and poem contest.

MAY:

1. We win another track meet. This time from L. C.—68-54.

4. Indian mermaids win the second half of the swimming race, but the meet goes to L. C. The total score is 83 to 71. We broke one out of the three records that were broken.

5. Hillyard surprises baseballers by beating us 6 to 3.

8-9. Dorothy Wheeler, Doris Meyers and the rest of the cast certainly made the class play a success.

9. We get second in the city track meet. First place goes to L. C.

14. Teachers become young again on Miss Greenberg's farm.

21. Senior tea is a big success.

29. Chorus classes present the cantata, "Man Without a Country" in our auditorium.

31. Baccalaureate! One day on which the seniors are really dignified.

JUNE:

1. Everybody is excited for it is the last week for the seniors.

3. The prom is held in the new civic building this semester. It is a sport affair.

4. Kids for a day—What fun!

5. At last we graduate with tears in our eyes and a song in our hearts.

Couch C. E. Wicks, of the University of Idaho athlete, did a most remarkable job of developing a good, though not a championship, football team last fall. Despite the fact that North Central finished at the bottom of the list in the city high school football race, the team worked hard and faithfully under the capable leadership of Mr. Wicks. Only four lettermen returned from the 1929 city championship team, and the new mentor had to build an entirely new aggregation around this quartet of experienced linemen. The returning lettermen were: Howard McInerney and Marion Malmoe, tackles; Francis Thyrian, guard and Bill Brubaker, end.

Twenty-one boys received their letters last year. These boys were: Bill Brubaker, Howard McInerney, captain, Marion Malmoe, Francis Thyrian, Bob Grieve, Fred Wehman, James Goodwin, Bud Jones, Bob Adams, Don Phillabaum, Clarence Castor, Bobbie Gray, Edward Anderson, Harold Hinkle, George Tiefel, Bob Demlek, Dexter Dahlen, Irwin Stewart, Mel Gullidge, Loren Jennings and Harold Dortch, manager.

Lewis and Clark, our ancient rivals across the water, defeated the Indian eleven by a score of 13 to 0 in the annual turkey day feud, thus ending the Indians' football season. The team chalked up a total of 83 points to their opponents' 49.

BASKETBALL

The North Central quintet, although they did not win the city championship, celebrated a most successful season this spring. Coach J.

Wesley Taylor had only one returning letterman and two second string men around which he had to build an entirely new aggregation.

Bill Shaw was the only man on the team who earned his letter in the winter of '30, and Mel Gullidge and Allen Walsh are the other two experienced men. Fenton Sherwood and Jack Misselhorn are both new in high school basketball competition. Other boys who earned their letters this year are: Curtis Scott, Fred Rich, Earl Neuru, Ralph Mills and Allyn Lennow, manager.

Melvin Gullidge captained the team to 13 victories and 9 defeats during the season.

Couch Guy Barney's Indian natators defeated the Lewis and Clark mermen this year by a score of 36 to 23. This is the first time in four years that North Central has defeated L. C. in swimming and it was the first sport during the entire school year in which the Indians were victorious over the south side school.

North Central boys who won their letters in swimming this spring were: Francis Thyman, Clarence Bunge, captain; Clyde Bergdahl, Charles Hauter, Bernard Bartlett, Carl Dralle, Lynn Smith, Fred Mullen, Milton Heywood, Roger Bankson and Dave Tugling, manager.

Basketball

Couch J. Wesley Taylor's first call for aspiring basketball stars was answered by approximately 180 boys last winter. Of this number, only one letterman returned from Bryan "Red" Reese's 1930 state championship team. This one man was none other than Bill Shaw, high point man for the 1941 series race. Shaw won his third basketball award last spring.

Mel Gullidge and Allen Walsh journeyed to Seattle in 1930 with Coach Reese, but they did not earn their letters until this year. Both Fenton "Shares" Sherwood and Jack Masselhorn entered their first year of high school basketball competition this spring. These five men made up the regular team this year. Curtis Scott was also a first year man. He substituted at center for Allen Walsh.

Three boys, who played stellar ball for Havermale Junior High last year, along with Allyn Lunnow, manager, rounded out the nine-letterman 1931 basketball team. These boys are: Fred Rich, Ralph Mills and Earl Neurn.

FIRST CITY FIGHT

The Indian quintet played its first game of the season, a city series game, with Hillyard High. The boys' earnest practice had not been in vain, for North Central's team was victorious, having won the game by the uncomfortably close score of 19-18.

VACATION TRIP

After their first encounter, the team embarked on its annual Christmas holiday barnstorming tour through Montana and northern Idaho.

The first game of the trip was played with Burke, Idaho. The Indians defeated Burke, 29-14 and later, Mullan, 25-4.

At Lewiston, North Central suffered its first defeat of the season when the team dropped a fast game to the Lapwai five by a score of 38-32. On their invasion of Montana, the first team celebrated two wins and an equal number of losses, while the second string took on the Whitefish seconds and added another victory to the team's roster. The Indians took the Troy grizzlies into camp to the tune of 18-16, and defeated Libby High by a score of 27-17. Then Whitefish stepped in front of the Indian five and defeated the latter by a score of 28-21.

The second team played the Whitefish subs and won a closely-fought game by a score of 7-4. The Indian first team was again defeated by the Whitefish quintet, the second game ending with the final count standing 37-22.

On the return trip home, the North Central basketeers tangled with the Sandpoint casaba tossers and added a 17-4 victory to their total, ere they completed the journey back to their own tepees.

CITY SERIES

The second game of the city fight found the North Central team facing the Gonzaga Bullpups. Gonzaga offered little or no opposition

Boys' Swimming

Although only two lettermen returned to Coach Guy Barnes from last year's team, he was able to turn out one of the best swimming teams that North Central has ever had.

Workouts were started during the fall semester and continued up to the Lewis and Clark meet. The sophomores showed that they had the best class team in the school by defeating the seniors in the finals of the interclass swimming meet 30 to 29. Juniors placed third.

In meeting the girls, the boys showed very decided improvement over their previous form. The first half ended with the mermaids leading 43-39. Two meets were held in order that more girls could participate. In the second half the boys overcame the girls' lead to win 85-79.

LEWIS AND CLARK MEET

Coach Hupperton of Lewis and Clark sent forth dismal tales concerning the Tiger prospects to match the stories that Barnes told. Both coaches refused to divulge the names of members of their teams until the day of the meet.

On the big day the Warriors came through with the first swimming victory in four years. The final score was 36-23.

For the fourth successive year the record in the 100-yard backstroke was broken. This year it was Charles Hauter who turned the trick.

Although Jack Violette of Lewis and Clark set two new marks, he was unable to stem the Indian band single-handed. His time of 19.6 seconds in the 40-yard dash was exceptionally fast.

Lewis and Clark was given the relay by default when one of the North Central mermen dived a moment too soon, disqualifying the team.

Summary of the meet:

40-yard free style—Violette (L. C.), first; Bunge (N. C.), second; Heywood (N. C.), third. Time, 19.6 seconds. (New record).

220-yard free style—Dralle and Bartlett (both N. C.), tied for first; Petty (L. C.), third. Time, 2:45.

Diving—Thyrian (N. C.), first; Mullen (N. C.), second; Leahy (L. C.), third.

100-yard free style—Violette (L. C.), first; Thyrian (N. C.), second; Bartlett (N. C.), third. Time 59.2 seconds. (New record).

100-yard breast stroke—Smith (N. C.), first; Miller (L. C.), second; Bergdahl (N. C.), third. Time, 1:20.2.

100-yard back stroke—Hauter (N. C.), first; Petty (L. C.), second; Bankson (N. C.), third. Time, 1:14. (New record).

Freshman relay—Won by Lewis and Clark (Gene Williams, Gray, Weiber and Marshall). Time, 1:33.2. (New record).

High school relay—Won by Lewis and Clark (Horr, Harris, Ebersole and Violette), by default.

W. S. C. FROSH MEET

Washington State had a highly touted frosh swimming team, but it was unable to defeat the Indians.

The Indians won from the Cougar Babes by a score of 43 to 16 the day after the Lewis and Clark meet. Clarence Bunge led the team to victory with six and one-fourth points.

Summary of the meet:

50-yard free style—Bunge (N. C.), first; Heywood (N. C.), second; Murphy, (frosh), third. Time, 27.4 seconds.

200-yard free style—Burns (frosh), first; Dralle (N. C.), second; Bartlett (N. C.), third. Time, 2:31.

Diving—Mullan (N. C.), first; Heisig, (frosh), second; Thyrian (N. C.), third.

100-yard free style—Burns (frosh), first; Thyrian (N. C.), second; Bartlett (N. C.), third. Time, 1:03.8.

100-yard breast stroke—Smith (N. C.), first; Bergdahl (N. C.), second; Anderson (frosh), third. Time, 1:20.8.

100-yard back stroke—Hauter (N. C.), first; Bankson (N. C.), second; Dickson (frosh), third. Time, 1:19.

200-yard relay—Won by North Central (Thyrian, Heywood, Bartlett, Bunge). Time, 1:55 1/2.

Below, Third row, Nolan, Wright, Martin, Chatterton, West, coach Guy Wicks. Row four O'Malley, Mills, Anderson, Godfrey.

About 65 answered Coach Guy Wicks' first call for baseball this spring. Of this number, there were only two lettermen returning from last year's team. These two experienced men were Mel Gullidge, first baseman and Bob Adams, second base.

When the city series started, Wicks' squad had trimmed itself to about 20 men, who were all issued suits. Ed Anderson, Bud Jones and Harold Godfrey were his outstanding pitchers and they all had a chance to show their stuff in different games of the series.

FIRST GAME—GONZAGA

The first game of the series was played with Gonzaga on their field. Anderson started on the mound and he pitched a good brand of ball, although the Bullpups garnered hits off him. This game was exciting throughout and Gonzaga had to fight hard to put over the winning run in the eighth inning and to keep the Indians from scoring in the ninth. At the end of the third inning the score was tied at 5-5, at the end of the fifth at 7 up, and when the seventh frame closed, the tally rested in an 8-8 knot. With two men on, Johnny Dashbach, Bullpup hurler, got a clean base hit, scoring the ninth run for Gonzaga.

The score by innings:

HILLYARD GAME

The second game of the series was captured by the Indians when they scored 16 runs and 13 hits on the Panthers on N. C. playfield. It was a hit-and-run fest from the beginning.

Harold Godfrey started the game and pitched good ball during the first part of the game, but he was knocked from the box in the third inning.

North Central took the lead with two runs in the first and two more in the second innings, but it was soon lost to the Panthers, who scored nine in their turn at bat in the third frame. There were no scores made in the next three innings but in the seventh, the Indians regained their lead with nine runs and added three more in the next inning. Hillyard garnered one more point before the game ended

SECOND GONZAGA GAME

The North Central team fought for eleven long, hard innings before they finally subdued the Gonzagans when the two teams met for the second time. The game ended 3 to 2 in the Indians' favor when Mel Gullidge rapped out a clean single with three men on base at the end of the eleventh frame.

Ed Anderson again chucked a fast, clean game of baseball. He held the Bullpups down to 6 hits and struck out 11 batters. John Dashbach pitched all but the last inning for Gonzaga and he also made a good job of the chucking assignment, striking out sixteen of North Central's batsmen, but he allowed nine hits.

L. C. CLASH

The first of the series of games with our ancient rivals across the river added another victory to North Central's credit, giving us three straight wins and one loss and a tie with Lewis and Clark for first place in the city series race. The Indians scored nine runs against five for the Tigers and secured 12 bingles off the two Tiger chuckers, Krebs and Miller.

Bud Jones began mound duty for the Indians and continued until the seventh inning, when he was replaced by Harold Godfrey. Bud pitched good ball, allowing the Tigers only 7 hits and 6 bases on balls and fanning out four men.

This defeat over the leaders of the city race, having won their first three games, was somewhat unexpected and gave the Indians new hopes for winning the city series pennant. The Tigers were doped to win the encounter by at least three runs.

Lewis and Clark started the scoring when they brought in one in the first inning. The Indians tallied three scores in the fourth and five in the sixth and allowed the Tigers only four runs after that.

SECOND HILLYARD GAME

An unexpected setback was experienced by the Indian nine when they were defeated 6 to 3 on Harmon field by the Panthers, whom they had conquered by a six run margin in the first encounter.

N. C. took the lead in the first half of the first inning with two runs, but they did not hold the edge over Hillyard for long. When it came their turn to bat in the first frame, the rail-rovers scored four times. The Indians threatened to at least tie the score in the third when they garnered another counter. This was the last score of the game for North Central, however, and the Panthers sewed up the game with two more tallies.

Ed Anderson pitched the whole nine innings of this game, allowing the Hillyard team only seven scattered hits and two bases on balls. He struck out eight men to Jones' (Hillyard) nine. Anderson was also the hitting ace for N. C., getting two bingles in his first two trips to the plate. Bilow got one hit and Chilton got the other.

LEWIS AND CLARK

Lewis and Clark took the North Central team into camp by the overwhelmingly large score of 16—3 in the second game of the series.

North Central took the scoring initiative when they countered two runs in the first inning.

Lewis and Clark came back with as many in the second frame and in the fourth, took a two-run lead which was reduced to one when the Indians came to the plate. The Tigers added three more in the next few innings and cinched the game with nine runs in the last frame.

Bud Jones pitched good ball until the last inning, when he was hit from the box. Godfrey finished the chucking assignment.

This game shoved the Indians back into a tie with Gonzaga for second berth in the city series standings with a percentage of .500.

LAST GONZAGA GAME

North Central lost its next game to Gonzaga, 9-0, ending the two-out-of-three game series with that school.

John Kearns, Gonzaga captain, pitched a shut-out game of ball, allowing only three hits, none of which were converted into runs. Ed

Track Team
First row: Cooney, Remer, Tatman. Second Row: Burchett, Scott, Metcalf, Hendricks, Angle, Castle, Natwick, Colburn, Grieve. Third row: Muto, Callahan, Schinke, Welch, Rich, Turner, Sherwood, Sherman, Roe, Legault. Fourth row: Albohn, Eugene, English, Dearborn, Miller, Bennett, Foster, Lamb, Robertson. Fifth row: Dibblee, Arndt, Conkwiler, Starlin, Emley, Burke, McCall, Finbar, Yeager, manager. Sixth row: Coach J. Wesley Taylor, Ulen, N. Durgin, Luenow, Patrick, Johnson, Barwat, Day. Seventh row: Lester, Carey, Chicka, K. Durgin, Dahlen, Bilow, Peterson, Demick, Ellarson.

About 180 boys were out at some time or other for track this spring. 70 of them continued to turn out until the end of the season.

Possibilities of another championship team looked strong as twelve lettermen were back in school. Unfortunately five of them were unable to participate because of ineligibility or on the doctor's orders.

Remer and Sherman returned to form the nucleus of a strong bunch of dash men. Others back included Ray Hendricks in the quarter and half; Grieve in the high jump; Schinke in the pole vault and shot put; Castle in the low hurdles and Stewart in the mile.

The first call was announced almost a month before the Gonzaga meet. If it had not been for the cold and rain, the team would have been in mid-season form at the first contest date; however it showed fine form in spite of these handicaps.

Novice and interclass meets were run so that all boys would have something for which they could train.

COEUR D'ALENE MEET

On April 25, Coeur d'Alene's hitch-hiking track team came over to vie with North Central in a track meet.

The Indian athletes seemed to let down after the victory of the week before and just barely pulled through with a tie of 61 to 61. Coeur d'Alene's spirit could not be denied and as a result the boys from the lake city took a number of events by the fraction of a foot both on the track and in the field.

Hendricks and Remer both won two firsts to score high for the Redskins. Earl Ritzheimer with 16 and LeGore with 14 counters were high for the Idaho school.

The absence of a number of point winners in several events was almost enough to bring a victory to Coeur d'Alene.

Summary of the meet:

100-yard dash—Remer, N. C.; Bilow N. C.; Sherman, N. C. Time—.10 2-5.

220-yard dash—Remer, N. C.; Angle, N. C.; Bilow, N. C. Time—23 seconds.

High jump—J. LeGore, C.; Humphrey and Jones, C.; and Sherwood and Natwick, N. C., tied for balance. Height—5 ft., 4 in.

Javelin—E. Ritzheimer, C.; F. Ritzheimer, C.; Bennett, N. C. Distance—150 ft., 11 in.

Relay—Won by North Central; no Coeur d'Alene entries.

GONZAGA MEET

North Central started out its track season in championship form winning the first meet of the season from the Gonzaga Bullpups, 87 to 85.

All but two first places were taken by the Warriors. Clean sweeps were made in the 100-mile run. The Bullpups scored a clean sweep yard dash, 220-yard dash, pole vault and the in the javelin and took their other first in the discus.

It was first discovered that the team had two good low hurdlers, Bilow and Castle. Unfortunately Castle lost his stride and fell on a hurdle, not placing.

A new man showed up best for the Indian squad. Natwick won firsts in the broad jump and in the shot put and a second in the discus. This totaled 13 points. Wayne Remer won the two dashes and ran on the relay to win 11½ counters and second high honors.

Bilow with two seconds and a first, and Hendricks with two firsts were next in line. Schimke took a first and a second to score eight points.

Remer finished far in the lead to win the relay. The boys got the baton away quickly and gained several yards in the various exchanges.

Summary:

100-yard dash—Remer, N. C., first; Bilow, N. C., second; Sherman, N. C., third. Time 11 seconds.

880-yard run—Hendricks, N. C., first; Yoder, Gonzaga, second; Arnold, N. C., third. Time, 2:14.3-5.

220-yard dash—Remer, N. C., first; Bilow,

LEWIS AND CLARK MEET

North Central entered the Lewis and Clark meet on May 1 doped to lose by at least 15 points, but we came out on the long end of a 68 to 54 count.

Ability to take second and third places decided the meet as both schools took six first places and tied for the other. North Central's relay team turned in a record breaking performance to win the event in 1:34 smashing the old mark by one and two-fifths seconds.

Schimke started the day out in great style winning the pole vault with a height of 10 feet, 10 inches. A clean sweep in the century put the Indians ten points in the lead, but it did not last long as the Leandersten boys took the

Tennis Team
First row — Gilbert, Dixon, Hove. Second row: Bayley, nonbager, Jorgenson, Loford, Hickey. Third row — Koehler, Scott, Penhalurick, Guy Barnes, coach.

As usual, the tennis season was started this year with a ladder tournament. About fifty boys answered the first call and were assigned their places on the ladder. It was too late in the season, however, before the tournament was started and so it was abandoned and in its place an open tournament was called by Coach Guy Barnes.

Richard Hickey and Curtis Scott were the only returning lettermen this year. Others who turned out, several of them having placed high on the ladder last year, are: Curtis Scott, Robert Kipp, Jack Gilbert, Harold Hove, Grant Dixon, Lloyd Jorgenson, Lester McEachron, Maloy Sensney, Clyde Bergdahl, Ted Loford, Armand McEwen, Ed Atchison, Wylie Scott, Max Pike, Harold Sanford, Bobbie Johnson, George Lowery, Guy Lanning, Mack Koon, George Sommers and Bill Washburn.

The first meet that the tennis squad played was taken by West Valley, 8 matches to 7. In the second meet, one with Hillyard, the Indians showed up much better than they did in this West Valley match.

The results of the first meet:

Singles:

Logan, (W. V.), beat Scott, (N. C.), 6-3, 6-3.
Hickey, (N. C.), beat Byram, (W. V.), 6-4, 6-1.

Connell, (W. V.), beat Penhalurick, (N. C.), 6-4, 7-5.

Goin, (W. V.), beat Jorgenson, (N. C.), 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

Koehler, (N. C.), beat Franch, (W. V.), 6-1, 6-0.

Kipp, (N. C.), beat Burton, (W. V.) 6-3, 6-4.

McEachron, (N. C.), beat Munday, (W. V.), 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Lowell, (W. V.), beat Hove, (N. C.), 6-2, 6-1.

Dixon, (N. C.), beat Haines, (W. V.), 6-3, 6-0.

Gilbert, (N. C.), beat Page, (W. V.), 2-6, 10-8, 7-5.

Doubles:

Byram and Connell, (W. V.), beat Scott and Penhallurick, (N. C.), 6-2, 9-7.

Gilbert and Hickey, (N. C.), beat Page and Goin, (W. V.), 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Hartley and Logan, (W. V.), beat Jorgenson and Koehler, (N. C.), 6-3, 6-3.

Logan and Smith, (W. V.), beat Hickey and Carrico, (N. C.), 6-2, 6-0.

North Central entered a team for the second time in the Spokesman-Review city high school golf championship trophy race this year. Last year was the first that this trophy was offered for golf and the Indians had the honor of being the first to win it. If the North Central team captures the championship two more times, the cup will rest in the permanent possession of N. C.

The team, which was composed of six players, played two matches with every other team, making six matches of six rounds each. The Nassau system of scoring was used to determine the winners of the meets. The player turning in the lowest score is awarded a certain number of points, making the high point man the winner. There are three points awarded the winner of each flight, making a total of 18 possible points for any one match.

There is no regular golf coach in North Central, due to the fact that no one in the school was really able to coach the sport. Mr. Kennedy, however, acted in the capacity of faculty director of the team because he is extremely interested in golf and is desirous of promoting it to its fullest extent as a high school sport.

Joe Shriver was elected captain of the squad early in the season and Ellwood Tucker, to whom a great deal of credit is due for the organization and play-off of the ladder tournament and the matches, worked hard in the capacity of student manager. This post is a responsible one and is new to the golf team this year.

North Central lost its first match of the 1931 season to Gonzaga by a score of 10 to 7. The loss was due largely to the absence of John Bilow, who was playing baseball. Bilow turned in some good scores during the ladder tournament and his vacancy had to be filled by a move-up of all players from number three position on and a substitution at sixth position. The results of the meet were:

Athletic Board
 First row: Wanita Sage, Betty Symons, Ann Louise Engdahl, Dorothy Schumacher, Phyllis Carrico. Second row: Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Hawes, Mr. Shaw, Mr. Green, Mr. Ecker, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Barnes, Mr. Wicks, Dr. Hall, Dr. Neeley, Bob Greiv. Third row: Wayne Remer, Mr. Kennedy, Bob Greiv, Jack Yeager, Mr. Green.

The Athletic board is a group made up of both students and members of the faculty. Its chief purpose is to determine what students are to receive letters. The students who have filled the requirements receive letters in football, baseball, tennis, swimming and track.

Members of the Athletic board are the principal, the vice principal, girls' athletic director, boys' athletic director, captains, managers and coaches of all teams.

Members: Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Hawes, Mr. Shaw, Mr. Green, Mr. Ecker, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Barnes, Mr. Wicks, Dr. Hall, Dr. Neeley, Bob Greiv, Phyllis Carrico, Charlotte Sellars, Wanita Sage, Melvin Gullidge, Dorothy Schumacher, Betty Symons, Virginia Wolters, Ann Louise Engdahl, Wayne Remer, Jack Yeager, Allyn Luenow, Howard Bayley, Roland Zahrlay and Clarence Bunge.

Girls Swimming Team

About 50 girls turned out for the first practices for the spring swimming. After the squad had practiced several weeks, Miss Waters, swimming coach, cut the number down to 38.

Each event was specialized in and the girls in each began to prepare for the handicap meet with the boys which was held February 18 and 23.

With a score of 43 to 39 the girls won the first half of the handicap meet. The boys came back in the second half to win the meet with the total score of 85 to 79. In the first half Anna Louise Engdahl and Dorothy Schumacher were high scorers for the girls and Francis Thyrian and Bob Bartlett were high for the boys. In the second half the high point girl was Claire Harris and the boys' high scorer was Francis Thyrian.

On April 27 the annual meet with Lewis and Clark was started and the following week the second half finished the tank event. The first half was in the North Central pool and the second was run through in the tank across the river.

Virginia Wolters captained the team and Betty Symons was manager, with Claire Harris assisting her.

Lewis and Clark took the first half with the score 52 to 25. In the last part North Central made a strong comeback and won the event, but the lead held by Lewis and Clark was too large to overcome. With the final score 83 to 71 the South Siders won the meet.

On April 27, Penelope King was high scorer for Lewis and Clark with 13 points, taking a first in the 100 yard dash and a first in the 220-yard free style and a second in the 100-yard back stroke.

Dorothy Schumacher was high point girl for North Central with eight points. Dorothy took a first in the 50-yard dash and a second in the 220-yard free style.

Summary of the first half:

50-yard dash—Dorothy Schumacher, N. C.; Preston Forcum, L. C., second; Lois Deidrich, L. C., third. Time 23.2

Diving—Barbara Watkins, L. C., first; Kathleen Sallee, N. C., second; Marjorie MacGregor, L. C., third. Points 58.7.

220-yard free style—Penelope King, L. C., first; Dorothy Schumacher, N. C., second; Marguerite McCarthy, L. C., third. Time 3:18.2.

Plunge for distance—Lois Deidrich, L. C., first; Phoebe Davis, N. C., second; Dorothy Paine, N. C., third. Distance 60 feet. (New city record.)

100-yard back stroke—Preston Forcum, L. C., first; Penelope King, L. C., second; Olga Frerborg, N. C., third. Time 1:26.

100-yard side stroke—Marjorie MacGregor, L. C., first; Nada Blount, N. C., second; Lee Nickolson, L. C., third. Time 1:33.6.

Relay—L. C., first (McCarthy, Nickolson, Deidrich, Watkins.) (New city record.)

With fifteen points to her credit Mary Lou Petty was high scorer for Lewis and Clark in the second half of the meet. Mary Lou took a first in the dives, a first in the 100-yard crawl and a first in the 100-yard back stroke.

Anna Louise Engdahl and Virginia Wolters were high for North Central. Each won ten points. Anna Louise took a first in the 50-yard dash and a first in the 100-yard breast stroke. Virginia took a first in the 220-free style and a first in the 100-yard side stroke.

North Central's relay team established a new record when they shattered the record set by Lewis and Clark the week before.

Summary of the second half:

50-yard dash—Anna Louise Engdahl, N. C., first; Mary K. Randall, L. C., second; Jean True, N. C., third. Time, 33.5.

Diving—Mary Lou Petty, L. C., first; Dorothy Anderson, N. C., second; Mary Randall, L. C., third.

GIRLS' GOLF

For the first time, a girls' golf club was started in North Central this spring.

Bernadine Childs was student leader and Miss Everett was faculty director in this group.

Sixteen girls turned out for the first meeting and plans were made to play on Downriver course every Saturday morning.

North Central's hiking club is composed of a group of girls who go on hikes every other Saturday morning.

Miss Tumm and Miss Ahl are the faculty leaders and Marion Blane is the student leader.

There was a contest between two sides, the Reds and Blacks, this spring. Aimee Russell was the leader of the Reds and Evelyn Kull of the Blacks.

As there was an early spring the girls got started early. The courses were in exceptional condition and the team made headway.

In May the team was divided into two parts and played a tournament on each consecutive Saturday. The winning side entertained the opposing team with a picnic.

A plan of the hikes to be made during the semester was drawn up and the hikes were made according to schedule.

Hiking letters were given to the girls who hike 100 miles in three consecutive semesters. Canteens and other equipment for hiking are given as prizes to the winners of different contests.

Girls' Baseball Squad

First row, Josephine Dittmar, Helen Crisp, Florence Forrester, Alice Barrier, Nada Blount, Emma Brennan, Martha Mehlert, Ada May Lyon, Marguerite Cook, Margaret Elliot. Second row, Winnifred Redman, Gladys Hollister, Dorothy Tessa, Shirley Hollister, Margaret Butterfield, Mary Cora Isabelle Boot, Ruth Meyers, Barbara Benson, Evelyn Smith, Lena Prudente. Third row, Frances, Miss McAnnon, May Blackwell, Nellie Pfluk, Doris Welker, Ella Pfluk, Gertrude, Geraldine Hawley, Meryl Gilbertson, Mary Dux. Fourth row: Rose Miller, Versula Porta, Ruth Aldridge, manager; Hilda Tressendorf, chairman; Phyllis Carrico, Ruth Katenborn.

March 15 was the date set for the turnout for girls' baseball.

One hundred and twenty-one girls turned out, Miss Irma Waters coached the team and Miss Helen McAnnon assisted her.

Captains were elected and the interclass tournament were started. The captains elected were as follows: Freshmen B, Barbara Benson; Freshmen A, Doris Welker; Sophomore Black, Jessie Symbol; Sophomore Reds, Evelyn Kull; Juniors, Bernice Oxreider; Seniors, Helen Neist.

Following was the schedule for the series: May 12, 9A vs. 9B; sophomore reds vs. sophomore black; junior team vs. senior. May 13, sophomore red vs. 9B; 9A vs. juniors sophomore blacks vs. seniors. May 20, sophomore blacks vs. 9A; 9A vs. sophomore blacks, sophomore reds vs. seniors. May (date undecided) seniors vs. 9A; 9A vs. sophomore reds; sophomore blacks vs. juniors.

The image shows a highly textured surface, likely the cover or endpaper of an old book. It features a repeating pattern of small, dark, circular or oval motifs, possibly embossed or printed, arranged in a somewhat regular grid. The background is a light, mottled greenish-grey color. The overall appearance is aged and worn, with some visible creases and discoloration.

Georgia Mundi, M e Williams, Marie P

First row Virginia Boyd, Marie Best, Jean True, Junior Peterson, Phyllis Carrico, captain, Wanita Sage, manager; Miss Jahreiss, coach. Second row Pamela Persons, Pauline Stutsman, Margaret Robbins, Sylvine McGinnis, Charlotte Sellers, Shirley G. Wilto, Rose Miller, Margaret McGee, Marion Blanc. Third row, Alice McCannon, Clarie Harris, Marie Correll, Margaret Barnhart, Agnes Tonson, Helen Brodrecht, Leslie Frazier

A ladder tournament was the feature of girls' tennis this spring.

Miss Jahreiss coached the squad which consisted of thirty-nine girls. Numbers were drawn and the tournament started early in May.

Two meets with West Valley, one with Otis Orchard and a meet with Hillyard also made up part of the activities of the team.

With a score of 7-5 West Valley won the first meet on North Central's courts on May 5. The second meet was on West Valley's courts on May 16.

The team met Hillyard during the last of May. There were about eight single matches and two doubles.

Three girls will be lost to the team by graduation. In June Wanita Sage, Rose Miller and Marie Best will graduate.

GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

For the first time since 1920 girls' volleyball was played at North Central.

Turnout was begun Tuesday, February 12, and about eighty girls were present, six teams were formed.

Miss Helen McCannon coached the teams. Elizabeth See was chosen manager and Evelyn Worlick was chairman.

On Friday, March 13, the first tournament was played. In the following two weeks each team competed at least once with every other team.

Junior A's were in the winners in the finals having won six out of the seven games in which they played.

Runner-ups were the sophomore B girls, winning five out of the seven contests.

Although the senior team defeated both the winners and the runner-ups they did not place in the finals as they had only won three games.

Winners received interclass letters and those placing next were given numerals. Girls who received letters are: Marie Evans, Naomi Howard, Margaret Johnson, Yvonne Lamb, Ruth Meyers, Gladys Schubbe, Mary Jane Gilbert, Marjorie Joyner, captain.

Numerals were given to the following: Ada May Lyon, LaVerne Freegord, Marion Murrill, Margaret Butler, Corrine Knauber, Flora Parson, Margaret Mehlert, captain.

BASEBALL

Anderson, although he pitched good, steady baseball, gave the Bullpups 12 hits and walked seven men.

North Central threatened to score in the first inning when Bob Adams came to bat and got a three base hit. There was no one on the bases, however, and the side was retired ere he had a chance to score.

The Bullpups sent ten men to the plate in the second inning and scored six of them. Kearns came up again in the third and knocked out a home run far over center field. Gonzaga made one more run in the seventh and one in the eighth.

L. C. GAME

Lewis and Clark found themselves one step closer to the city championship when they defeated the Indians for the second time in the third game of the five-game series by a score of 6-5.

With the possible exception of the second Gonzaga game, it was without a doubt the closest game the Indian nine has played during the entire city series. At the beginning of the eighth inning, the score was 5-3 in North Central's favor. Krebs came to bat for the Tigers in the eighth and knocked a home run over the left field fence with one man on base, tying the score at 5-all. Neither team scored in the ninth inning and the Tigers allowed no runs when North Central came to bat in the tenth. Then L. C. came to the plate, and with one away, they scored the winning run on errors on Morton and Green. Sammy made his mistake on an attempted double play, which would have been good had he not thrown wild to first base. Then Gullidge recovered the ball and threw it to second, attempting to catch the man who had gotten by him at first. There was no one at second to receive the ball and it rolled through Pat Green's fingers, scoring the final run.

Bud Jones pitched a wonderful game of ball during the eight innings which he pitched, as did Muzatko, who chucked the entire game for the Tigers. Jones allowed the Tigers only six hits and four bases on balls, striking out six batters. Ed Anderson, who took over Jones' assignment in the eighth inning, after Krebs had garnered the homer, struck out two men and walked one. The Tigers got only one safe hit while Anderson was on the mound. Chuck Muzatko, from whom the Indians gathered only four hits, struck out nine men and walked five.

FINAL HILLYARD GAME

North Central ended its series with Hillyard when it defeated the Panther nine with the final tally resting at 8-2. This victory was the fourth that the Indians had celebrated this year, leaving them in third place in the city series race, with a percentage .444.

All the runs of the game were scored in three innings. The Indians started the scoring in the fourth when Ed Anderson, who usually works on the mound but played left field in this game, got a two-base hit, scoring Ed. Chilton. The Panthers came to bat in the sixth inning and put two men on base. They both scored, not on hits but on wild throws.

The eighth was the fatal inning for the Panthers and a slugfest for the Indians. Bilow, the first man up, popped a good three-bagger and Anderson scored both John and himself with a home-run on errors. The entire team batted around and ran up a total of seven scores in the eighth inning.

Harold Godfrey pitched the entire game for the Indians and did a wonderful job of it. He fanned 13 Hillyard batters and allowed only two bases on balls and two hits. Jones, who was knocked out of the box in the fatal eighth, struck out five and allowed four men to walk. Baylis, who succeeded him on the mound, walked two and did not have any strike-outs to his credit.

Harold Hinkle played a good steady game of ball and got one hit and one run from twice at bat.

The score by innings:

Investment is neither a GAME nor a GAMBLE. It is a highly scientific procedure based upon extensive research and upon painstaking investigation. INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES always exist, but they must be searched for, selected and supervised.

Today the world turns toward gold mining as the surest and quickest way to profits under prevailing conditions. Read the financial papers, read the daily papers, read the feature articles in the weekly and monthly magazines, and you will see that GOLD is again the forefront of investment interest.

and the Indians brought home another victory, the game ending 21-8.

The next series game marked the opening of the annual three-out-of-five game feud with Lewis and Clark, our ancient rivals across the river. The Indian quintet held the score down to a 10-10 knot during the first half, but the Tigers rallied in the second stanza and led by a 23-14 tally when the final gun sounded.

The next encounter was the second and final one with Gonzaga. The "boys from Boone avenue" were none the wiser for the first defeat at the hands of the Braves and were defeated by a score of 19-10 by the North Central hoopsters.

The Southsiders again proved too formidable for the Indian team when they defeated the latter by a score of 31-9. Both teams were a little off form, and although the play was just a mite ragged, good sportsmanship and clean playing were in evidence at all times.

The moral of the team was heightened, at least momentarily, when it avenged the two Lewis and Clark defeats by conquering the Hillyard Panthers. The final score ending 26-10 in favor of the fighting Indians.

The last city series game was without a doubt the most interesting and spectacular of the entire season. It was played between Lewis and Clark and North Central in the Northsiders' gym and marked the termination of the city series. Neither team was long in the lead and until the game was at its end, it could not be foretold which five would be victorious. North Central led by a one-point margin at the half, the tally standing 7-6. Near the end of the game, the Tiger quintet surged ahead and, whether by chance or by dint of superior playing, held their two-minute lead of 13-10 until the final gun barked. This victory decided the fact that Lewis and Clark should represent this section of the state at the tournament, which was held in Seattle during the second week in March.

POST-SERIES GAMES

After the city series was finished, the team played several games, two of them outside the city. Nine men journeyed to Chewelah one Saturday and brought home a 38-22 victory. The second team defeated the Johnson drug

OF THE WORLD'S FASTEST RACKET!

... It's the Wright & Ditson Eagle—twin of the famous $15 Top-Flite Racket. The Eagle has the same speed-giving open throat as the Top-Flite—the feature that's responsible for making the Top-Flite "the world's fastest tennis racket." Stringing the Eagle with long wearing Damproof strings allows pricing this fine bat one-third less than the Top-Flite. Only $10—see it to-day!

We also have in stock a fresh batch of Wright & Ditson Championship Tennis Balls—the most uniform tennis balls made. Each, 50c.

five, 26-19, and the first string won a practice game from the North Central print shop.

The Indians played host to the U. of Idaho frosh, a much taller and more experienced team, and were defeated by the latter to the tune of 27-14. The last trip that the Indians took was to Moscow, where they played a return game with the Idaho frosh and were again defeated, the second time by a 39-18 final count.

The North Central team ended a most successful season by defeating the print shop by a score of 26-16.

Thus the team accounted for its 13 wins and nine losses, and second place in the city series standings.

back strong to win two matches from Hillyard in three days.

The first match was played on Saturday and the Indians had little trouble in taking the Panthers into camp with the final count at 12-2. H. Jones and D. Whitrock scored one point each for Hillyard. Only five flights instead of the usual six, were played because John Bilow, who was running in the city track meet, was not there to play his number two position.

Recently the constitution of the club was again revised to sponsor any worthy school activity and to develop the talents of each girl individually. The club takes care of some needy family every Christmas, and each year the Vox awards ten dollars to a senior girl who has overcome difficult obstacles and has stood in the foreground in scholarship.

Each year the club presents a show called the Vox Variety Vodvil, the proceeds of which go, for the most part, to the playfield. The members added also to the profits of the Pow Wow last fall with their Miniature Polles.

FINAL SERIES GAME

North Central ended its schedule in the city series race by giving their final game to the Tigers in a comedy (or rather a tragedy) of errors. The count was 18-7.

It was a hit-and-run fest for the Tigers all the way through. They garnered fourteen hits from our pitchers and Chuck Muzatko allowed the Indians only eight. Most of their runs, however, were made from the eight North Central errors.

Godfrey pitched another game for North Central, turning in six strike-outs and only two bases on balls. Bud Jones, who preceded him on the mound, walked six and struck out two.

The real baffler of the game was Muzatko. The Indians were fanned sixteen times ere they were able to solve his delivery for the eight hits which they earned. Only five got to first base as a result of his wild throws.

The one redeeming feature of the last Lewis and Clark game were the two home runs made by Mel Gullidge. He came to bat in the first inning and lifted a pretty one far over the left field fence, scoring two men who were on base.

NBC Friday Night at 9

Bill Shaw: And now that I've told you I'm going to marry Marjorie, there is one thing I would like to get off my chest.

Dr. Carroll: What's that?

Bill: A tattooed heart with Dorothy's name on it.

* * *

Mr. Chandler: Earl, your trouble is in not remembering dates.

Earl McCarthy: You've got me wrong, Mr. Chandler. I've never missed a date in my life.

Clarence Talbot: Why do blushes creep over girl's faces?

Doris Myers: Because if they ran they would kick up too much dust.

Joan Bell: What is it that has a tail, four legs and barks?

J. Allen: A dog.

Aw, somebody told you.

* * *

Mr. Rowlands: Ever had economics?

Jim Green: No, only measles and chicken-pox.

Morland Jones: She wouldn't kiss me on the river so I paddled her back.
